

The King Shrenik
and Mother Deer

Once upon a time, there was a king called Shrenik who loved hunting. One day, he went into the jungle. While he was riding a horse fast, he saw a beautiful deer running.

She was having a baby in her stomach. The king rode behind her. She ran to protect herself and her unborn child, but the king chased her and finally shot her with an arrow. The poor deer died.

When the king went near the deer, he saw that the deer was pregnant. He became very proud of himself,

"I am such a sharp hunter,"

he thought,

"I have killed two deers with one arrow."

These proud thoughts about the cruel killing of an innocent animal got him the bad karmas, so he ended up going to hell.

We must be kind to animals. If we kill the animals, we will also suffer.
