

It's All About the Road Trip
Heart & Soul for Women of Faith
Year 6, Episode 197

Jory H. Fisher, JD, PCC
www.JoryFisher.com

Jennifer Miller, MAR, LPC
www.NoLonger2.com

Jory Fisher: Hello and welcome to Heart & Soul for Women of Faith, a radio show designed specifically for Christian women leaders and entrepreneurs. My co-hosts and I focus our discussions on how to live a joyful and purposeful life by developing healthy bodies and souls, healthy minds and finances, and healthy relationships. Our goal is to help you nourish your physical, mental, and spiritual well-being so you can make the difference you're called to make and glorify God through success. I'm Jory Fisher, a featured host on BlogTalkRadio with my co-host: author, speaker, counselor, pastor, and good friend, Jennifer Miller. Hi, Jennifer. Thank you for joining me for year 6 episode 197 of Heart & Soul for Women of Faith. How are you tonight?

Jennifer Miller: I'm doing great. Thank you for having me. I can't believe 197. That's such a big number.

Jory Fisher: Well, I know, I know. It's like, "Ooh, what am I going to do for 200?"

Jennifer Miller: Mm-hmm.

Jory Fisher: Yes, we've been doing this for a while and I'm so glad you've been on this journey with me since October. It has been wonderful.

Jennifer Miller: Yes.

Jory Fisher: All right, well, let me just say a little bit about who we are and how we fulfill our calling before I start our conversation, Jennifer. As a professional certified coach and Top Six Expert, I specialize in helping Christian leaders and entrepreneurs be successful so they can make a truly significant contribution to the world. Please visit JoryFisher.com to sign up for free e-books and to enjoy hundreds of blog posts and radio show podcasts. Also, as an ambassador for the EMSquared Project, I'm helping eliminate childhood malnutrition through the sustainable model of social entrepreneurship. Please visit JoryFisher.com/ShareHope to learn about this quickly growing global movement and how you too can get involved. Jennifer, how about you? Would you please introduce yourself to our listeners?

Jennifer Miller: Hello, everyone. As Jory mentioned, I'm a Christian counselor, pastor, and author, and actually, both of my books are now available on Amazon. My most recent book, Road Trippin': A Parable of a Spiritual Journey just became available not that long ago. You can also find my first book, No Longer Two: A Guide to How God Created Men, Women, and Marriage also available on Amazon. You can learn more about both books as well as what I do on my personal website, which is NoLonger2.com.

In addition to my writing, I'm the co-executive director of a faith-based wellness ministry based in Arizona called the Center for Living Well. We offer wellness classes, workshops, and retreats including faith-based yoga classes and training. I also work with individual clients, in person and virtually, with counseling and prayer therapy. You can learn more about what I do at the center through that website which is CenterforLivingWell.org.

Jory Fisher: Fantastic. Well, I think I'm going to have to add the word "prolific" to author. You have two and, knowing you, you have more under your belt so congratulations and our listeners are going to hear more about that second book today, aren't they?

Julie Miller: Yes. Yes, they are. I'm excited.

Jory Fisher: All right, folks, so a few words about how to listen to and participate in Heart & Soul for Women of Faith, which airs on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 PM Eastern on BlogTalkRadio. You can listen to any of our archived on demand episodes, follow this show, and add Heart & Soul to your iTunes library by going to BlogTalkRadio.com/JoryFisher. We encourage you to share Heart & Soul with your friends and family using the social media icons on BlogTalkRadio and on JoryFisher.com, and to post your comments and questions for us on my Facebook page, Jory Hingson Fisher. Okay, Jennifer, introduce the topic today. I know you're excited about it, your baby.

Jennifer Miller: Yes, I'm so excited. So my second book, it's called Road Trippin'. It's a parable of a spiritual journey and it is now available on Amazon both in paperback and Kindle, and I'm also working right now with a friend of mine to record an audio version. I'm really excited because this is different than my first book. My first book was written from the perspective of a pastor and a counselor, and it's definitely like a self-help book whereas Road Trippin' is written as a fictional story and so it really is like a parable. It's relatable and it's an enjoyable story about a character and his interactions with Jesus, but yet you also learn something along the way.

So this is the first time I've written a fictional story as a means of teaching but at its heart, it's all about relationship with Jesus and relationship with God, and really learning how to connect in that kind of a relatable personal way. I'm really excited for people to experience it because I think it will resonate no matter where you are in your own personal spiritual journey.

Jory Fisher: Mm-hmm and it could be a good gift for others, right?

Jennifer Miller: Oh yes.

Jory Fisher: Like maybe there's someone that you've been a little uncomfortable talking directly with about your faith and you can give them this little book and say, "Hey, why don't you read this book and then we'll schedule a coffee time to talk about it," or something like that. That will be cool too.

Jennifer Miller: Definitely.

Jory Fisher: Well, I have to say, Jennifer, that it is only appropriate that a book about Jesus would be written in parable form and through that...

Jennifer Miller: Right.

Jory Fisher: ... You know, it's the power of story, right? What did you learn going through the process yourself of crafting, creating, co-creating a story with a message? What lessons came up for you?

Jennifer Miller: Well, I definitely started with, at least an intention of what sorts of things I wanted to address in the book and I definitely wanted it to be, like I said, about relationship and focusing on the relationship rather than focusing just on trying to like push church or push Bible reading, or you know, kind of not focusing necessarily like the stuff we do as Christians but instead, the stuff that actually makes us Christians - and it's our faith and it's our relationship with Jesus.

I wanted to tackle some of the things that seem to impede that for people. So the character in this story is a man. It's a young man and, to be honest, it's kind of loosely based on my husband's faith walk and so that's where some of that inspiration came from. As you said, God has kind of inspired me to maybe write another one in parable form that maybe is about my own faith walk because all of us have a different relationship with Christ and all of us come to that relationship differently. All of us have had different potential stumbling blocks or issues, and so that was the other thing I wanted to tackle was what specific questions, doubts, obstacles, those sorts of things that impede people from fully connecting with Christ.

That was kind of the framework that I had but I really had to just let the Holy Spirit move because if I was not in a creative mode, I didn't like anything that came out. So I always had to wait for the Holy Spirit to give me some sort of creative juice in order to sit down and write.

Jory Fisher: Yes. Well, we don't want to give away everything here, but how much of the story can you tell? At the very least, who would this be good for, what motivated you to write it? Say as much as you want. I know some authors who are like, "Oh no, I can't tell anything about the book. No one will buy it."

Jennifer Miller: Yes.

Jory Fisher: And the other authors on the other spectrum who are like, “Sure, I’ll tell you everything on the radio but I still hope you go out and buy it.” So entirely up to you, Jennifer. What would you like to do?

Jennifer Miller: Well, I think that it’s about, like I said, a young man but even though the main character is a man, I think it’s relatable to women as well and it is a story of somebody who is not antagonistic to faith but will probably fall more in kind of like the agnostic kind of realm where he has his grandmother who has been very pivotal in his life and she is a woman of devout faith. He has never fully rejected it mostly out of respect for her, but he doesn’t really get it. He has never had that kind of experience with God that makes it real for him. So he is the type of person that has kind of just floated along in life and I did that myself in my college years. It’s like I grew up in church but I kind of floated along without it for a number of years.

So I think there are a lot of people that can relate to that and maybe they have always floated along. Maybe they have some experience with church or Christians but really aren’t sure about it. So that’s why I think it would be good for seekers, it would be good for people who are just open to the idea, but I think it’s also relevant to people who have had a relationship with Jesus for a quite a while because we can look back on when we were like that and we can still relate to that.

I don't think our relationship with Jesus is ever complete and so even though we may not be there, we can still relate to the journey. His name is Sean, the main character, the journey that Sean goes on with Jesus. So I think it's relevant in that way to anybody but I think it would be particularly meaningful to people who still have questions, still have doubts, still wonder, still kind of, you know, maybe float along a little bit in their relationship part with Jesus. Even if they go to Church all the time, they may still kind of not have a “groundedness” in the relationship piece maybe. I don't know if that makes sense.

Jory Fisher: Oh goodness, absolutely, absolutely. Okay, I think we agree that all of life is a journey and for those of us who are inclined to care about faith, it's completely a faith journey. You don't go in straight line. You kind of - what's it called, tacking? You tack to the right; you tack to the left and a storm might blow you backwards but you just keep going on this journey.

So for you to write a parable about a young man, I don't want to give all that away, but he is on a journey. It's so in keeping with our own faith journey. So back to the question about what you learned in writing this book, how did it help you with your journey?

Jennifer Miller: It was interesting because I've kind of taught on this idea before and I have used the metaphor of a road trip in order to kind of explain and so that's why that became the context of this, is the road trip is kind of the context. But even as I was writing and developing, it was interesting for me to see how it unfolded in conversational form and how this character was interacting with Jesus. The questions that seemed to kind of flow naturally in that conversation because there are questions that I've heard people ask that I've never stopped to ask, so I thought it was relevant to explore that myself; that I've never asked this question but I know other people ask it, and so I'm going to get into Scripture and I'm going to get into commentaries, and I'm going to get into the insights that amazingly intelligent Christians before me have had about this and really explore that.

I was so determined to be Biblical in how I have Christ answer him because I know that there was a lot of pushback when, for example, like The Shack came out. It's also a parable but a lot of people gave it a lot of flack because it was his understanding of Jesus and it was very much flowed through him, and he even says, "I was not trying to be doctrinal. I was not trying to write something that was theological in nature." Well, I didn't want to fall into that because I want people to be able to take what Jesus says to Sean to heart in that it really is what He would say. So I learned a lot in my study of trying to find answers for questions that people wrestle with. I really wanted to make the answers be what Jesus would actually say.

Jory Fisher: I just love that. Would you be sweet and share one question and one answer as an example?

Jennifer Miller: Okay. I have a copy of it here. There is a part where I actually use a road tripping game or whatever, a road trip game where he gets to ask some questions and so first to kind of start the surface. So let me see, okay, one question, it was actually, it came from – which book was it? I think it was Dan Brown's book with that whole theory that Jesus was married to Mary Magdalene.

Jory Fisher: Oh gosh!

Jennifer Miller: Do you remember that? Wasn't that, that was Dan Brown, I think?

Jory Fisher: Yes.

Jennifer Miller: So anyway, So Sean, let me see. I'm on page 62.

So Sean says to himself: Before I drive myself crazy, I'm just going to put it out there and see what He says. "What about sex?"

[Jesus] "What about it?"

"Did you have sex while you were alive?"

"No, I was never married."

"That doesn't mean you didn't have sex."

"Yes it does. I wasn't here for carnal pleasures. I wasn't here to start a family. I was here to serve."

"Oh, I've heard that some people have a theory that you were married to a Mary Magdalene or something."

"That would be a bit of fiction. I was never married." I don't know what else to say to that. Luckily, He keeps going. "But I know people have sex outside of marriage all the time. I encountered some people while I was alive who had lived that kind of lifestyle. I continue to encounter it today."

"Yes, I have lived that lifestyle myself." I admit that with some sheepishness. It doesn't sound like He approves.

"I know."

It is creepy to think that Jesus knows about my sex life. "You think it's wrong, don't you?"

"Do you know why I think it's wrong?"

"Because you're old fashioned?"

"No, because I made you. I designed you. I know how you work best and casual sex is not what works best."

So then they go on to have a conversation about sex.

Jory Fisher: Yes, you just kind of grapple with everything right there. I didn't see too many areas that you had not treated that come up fairly often. Good for you, good for you.

Jennifer Miller: Yes, so that's one of the questions.

Jory Fisher: Yes, of course with that one, it probably wasn't too, too difficult to search Scripture to see what the answer would be.

Jennifer Miller: Mm-hmm. You know but yet you have to find that what would Jesus actually say and so I went to places like, how did Jesus talk to them at the well? How did Jesus talk to Mary Magdalene? People who he knew lived sexually immoral lives and even though Jesus would say, "Yes, it's wrong," but how would He say it? Well, it was always with love. It was always with grace.

Jory Fisher: Mm-hmm. Wow, great! Wonderful! Okay, let's wrap this around lessons that we can learn from this parable and, hopefully, everybody will race right out and get this and apply it to our own lives as leaders and entrepreneurs.

Jennifer Miller: Yes, because the final place where Sean lands is he's going to this journey where he's first getting to know Jesus and then that starts to have an impact on him, and where I have him kind of end is not some happily ever after per se, but rather this revelation that he wants to continue to pursue a relationship with Jesus and that he realizes he cares what Jesus thinks about the choices he's making. That's the take-away I want from people; it's not supposed to look a certain way. We are not supposed to be striving to get to a certain place. This is a journey we are on forever. Instead, it's about caring more and more about what Jesus has to say and listening for that. I think in that regard, it is inspirational and relevant to all of us because we make decisions all the time - in our personal life and our professional life. So how often do we stop and listen and care what Jesus has to say?

Jory Fisher: Right. It's been fun on this entrepreneurial journey that I have been on to see how faith and business are so woven together. Of course there are lots of books out there, several. I don't know about lots actually but I've read quite a few that do weave business and faith together. That's pretty darn exciting. I mean, some people go as far as to say that Jesus is their CEO and coach, right?

Jennifer Miller: Mm-hmm, definitely.

Jory Fisher: Yes. Well, you have so many things going on including a nonprofit ministry, which is wonderful, but let's get specific here. How do you take your relationship with Jesus and grow it while deepening your faith, of course, and growing in your profession? How do you weave it all together, Jennifer?

Jennifer Miller: I think there are a couple of different layers: one is something that you talk a lot about which is purpose, right? Am I checking in with God to see if this is what he wants me doing? Is this supposed to be a part of my path? It's seeking that affirmation and that confirmation that what I'm doing is what He wants to be doing. When you have that confirmation, then it's a matter of, okay, then how do you want me to do it? Now that I know this is what you want me to do, now how do you want me to do it? Maybe even why do you want me to do it? What's my motivation here and then also what should it look like?

That's where it is a matter of like listening and checking in with Jesus for that affirmation that the Holy Spirit brings, but then also looking to Scripture for those principles on how we do things. How do I be a business owner that's honest? How do I be a business owner that honors people? Those sorts of things too and so I would look at it in all three layers not, you know, it's like, is this what I'm supposed to be doing? How should I be doing it? Maybe even like, why? Why do I keep going even when it may seem discouraging at times or maybe a lot work? So I would say I assess all three areas, periodically checking and saying, "Okay, am I still doing what you want me to be doing? Awesome, okay. Is it still how you want me to do it?"

Jory Fisher: Right. A toothpaste tube just came to mind. [Okay, Jory, what is that?] You know how when you squeeze the toothpaste tube, whatever is in there, it's going to come out. Remember Stripe toothpaste for example?

Jennifer Miller: Yes.

Jory Fisher: You are too young. Oh, you do?

Jennifer Miller: I do.

Jory Fisher: I thought that was so cool, it was like magic. Just like, wow, look at the stripe. How does it do that instead of being all just one big mess? And then I think one day I probably got a cut in the tube, and I was surprised to find that it really was white in the inside, it wasn't all stripes on the inside. Somehow the stripes I guess were magically formed as it was leaving the tube. Anyway, the whole thing totally amazed me but back to this. It's like when you take a toothpaste tube and you squeeze it, whatever is in there will come out. I'm thinking about pressure points, so something that can happen during the day. We get squeezed and whatever is really in us will come out.

Now, unfortunately, it's not always going to be a good thing. I can make several examples. Being cut-off in traffic, for example, a really sweet sentiment might not flow out of our mouths at that instant. But I'm relating this to you and what you are talking about here because as we work on growing a relationship with Jesus, our inside will hopefully take on the attributes that the Holy Spirit wants to imbue us with, right? We will have the "Galatians look" to us, which would be wonderful. So that when we do have to make a snap decision in business or whatever, it will be our character as imbued to us through the Holy Spirit, through Jesus, through God that will come out, right? That's a long way of saying this. I think growing our relationship with Jesus will help us make good business decisions.

Jennifer Miller: Mm-hmm. Well, you know, it reminds me. I had a conversation about that not too long ago with somebody. It sounds a little confusing but the way that it came to me was, an apple tree isn't an apple tree because it grows apples; an apple tree grows apples because it's an apple tree. When we look at what comes out of us, we aren't that because that's what comes out of us. That comes out of us because of who we are, you know?

Jory Fisher: Yes.

Jennifer Miller: It's like if who I am, if I am Christ-conscious person, if that's what's inside me, this too, it's like then what's going to come out. It's looking and saying, "No, I'm not necessarily defined by my actions but my actions should reflect what defines me."

Jory Fisher: Absolutely.

Jennifer Miller: That's how we can assure that because we've all done things that we look at them and like, "Oh, why did I do that? That's not who I am. That's not an accurate reflection of who I am." So then it's like, okay, how can you be more mindful then and how can you keep in that journey of self-development so that you can be more congruent with what's coming out of you? That's where that faith journey is, is like. I need to continue to connect with Christ. I need to learn how to listen for Him and that is something I cover in the book, various ways that God can talk to you because that can be very confusing for people. How do I listen for God? What does that mean? They actually have a full conversation on one of the chapters about how God talked but then it's then acting on that and letting that change you, and letting that flow out of you. So exactly what you are talking about.

Jory Fisher Mm-hmm. Yes, another way I think of it too is what's your plumb line? I think being really clear on who we are at our core will help us in making those business decisions and if Jesus is in our lives, then who we are at our core absolutely has to involve growing our relationship with Jesus. So some ways to do that, again, without saying everything that Jesus says to Sean in the book, what are some tips that we can give to people for how to grow their relationship with Jesus to help them become better leaders, better entrepreneurs, better moms, whatever it might be?

Jennifer Miller: Yes. Well, I think that what's coming to mind is I usually ask people three questions: on a scale of 1-10, 1 being none, 10 being absolutely, how much do you feel like you need to be doing this? How much do you feel like you should be doing this? How much do you feel like you want to be doing this? Because we will only do things we need to do for so long, we will only do things we should do for so long. At our heart, we do what we want to do.

Jory Fisher: Right.

Jennifer Miller: So to me, it starts with do you want to know Jesus more? Do you want to connect with Jesus? Do you want to hear what He has to say? So doing that heart check and saying, to what degree do I want it? And even if I only want it a little bit, go with that because the want will grow. The more you know Jesus, the more you want from Him, the closer that you want.

Jory Fisher: Yes.

Jennifer Miller: So wherever you are, just figure out, what exactly do I want? Go for that because it will grow. The more that you want Jesus, then the more it becomes part of who you are and the more time you want to spend with Him. That's when the action pieces start to come in, but don't do it just because you feel like you should. I want people to do it because they want to connect with Jesus.

Jory Fisher: Right.

Jennifer Miller: They want to know him more. From there, you start to develop spiritual eyes and ears where you see Him and hear Him. Then from there, you make a commitment to, like we were talking about, having your actions, your outside be congruent with your inside.

Jory Fisher: Mm-hmm. Oh gosh, I love and I've heard you say before and perhaps it's because I read your book... Thank you for the reminder. I mean, that is really true. As a coach, that's something that I do work on with my clients and I try to keep it in mind as I'm working with my daughters too, for example. But if somebody doesn't want to do something for their own reasons as opposed to something that's imposed upon them, so we are looking at an internal focus as opposed to an external. If they don't really want to do it themselves, it's going to be very hard for it to happen.

It could be losing weight for example, getting healthier. It could be reaching out to prospective clients. It could be anything in business or personal life. But if you don't really want to do it, it's not going to happen or at least it's not going to happen for very long. Something that helps is to use the “so that.” Like, “I really want to know Jesus better so that.... I really want to get healthier so that....” Usually I ask my clients to be more specific about what getting healthier means. I'm just saying it in a broad sense here. Yes.

Jennifer Miller: That's great. That becomes that touch point or that plumb line that you can continue to draw yourself to. Those are important things because there is a reason why God over and over again keeps telling us, “Remember, remember” because He knows that our memories are short. So, having that kind of touch point, having that kind of, “I want this so that..., I want to do this so that....” That's great. I love that idea.

Jory Fisher: Mm-hmm yes and of course, the Simon Sinek, Your Big Why. That is a lot. For you all who haven't heard him say it on his video, I'm sure if you just go to YouTube and put in the search, “Simon Sinek.”

Jennifer Miller: Oh, it's his TED Talk called the Golden Circle. We use that in our training program.

Jory Fisher: Perfect.

Jennifer Miller: It's a TED Talk. It's for free and it's called The Golden Circle. It's amazing. We've definitely focused on making sure you know your why.

Jory Fisher: Yes. That really helps you get up out of bed in the morning. It helps you if you are needing to reach out to prospective clients, for example. It helps you do that because you are thinking about, what is your mission to help other people and if you do have a business, for example, what is it that's motivating you to earn a profit? Why do you need money in the first place?

Jennifer Miller: Exactly because he even says, “Because money is the outcome.” It's not the motivation, money is the outcome. Know why you want to do this and I think that that goes back to purpose. God gave us that purpose. He gives us our calling. It all comes full circle, you know that and that's because it's a process we are continually going through. It's just this process.

Jory Fisher: It's a journey, isn't it?

Jennifer Miller: Exactly. It's like a road trip.

Jory Fisher: Imagine that. I have found that starting off my day with a quiet time, with spending time with Jesus is actually better than telling myself, “I'll do it later on” because that later on, ooh, you know, I have a hard time getting to it. Have you ever noticed that? Are you the same way?

Jennifer Miller: Mm-hmm, yes. If you put it off too far, you won't get on it that day.

Jory Fisher: But the funny thing is, if we're supposed to give our first fruits to God, my first fruits are better if I've gotten up, fed the dog, maybe taken a shower, exercise, and had a cup of coffee, then my first fruits are better.

Jennifer Miller: Oh, I completely agree. I completely agree. Me waking up at 5:30 in the morning, that is not the best me. The best me is about 8:30 in the morning, it's not 5:30.

Jory Fisher: Isn't that funny? Oh my gosh. Well, you may be in Arizona and I'm in Maryland and we have that strange time zone thing. Are we now two hours apart instead of three?

Jennifer Miller: Yes because Arizona doesn't change. Everybody changes around us.

Jory Fisher: That's right. So we are definitely in sync when it comes to apparently the body rhythms or whatever you call that, the body clock. What do they call that?

Jennifer Miller: Oh, Circadian rhythms.

Jory Fisher: There you go.

Jennifer Miller: Circadian rhythm is what you're talking about.

Jory Fisher: Thank you, thank you. That's funny. All right, well, we are drawing to a close here. Tell people again how they can get this wonderful book and any last tips you want to share, Jennifer?

Jennifer Miller: If you go Amazon.com and you search for Road Trippin' by Jennifer Miller, you should find it. You can also find No Longer Two on there. I also have links to the Amazon listing on my website, NoLonger2.com, that's the number 2, so you can find it either way, but I also want to offer to our listeners, if you want an autographed copy of the paperback, if you email me, then I have copies. You can let me know that you want an autographed copy and I can actually mail you an autographed copy. Just email me at Jennifer@CenterforLivingWell.org and we can coordinate that. So if anybody wants to get one that's signed or dedicated to anybody in particular, I'd be more than happy to do that. You can also contact me that way.

Jory Fisher: That's great. In my opinion, I really think this book is for all ages. I mean, Sean maybe a young man as the main character but oh my gosh, I think anybody can relate to it.

Jennifer Miller: Definitely and even though, like I said, they have a conversation about sex, it's not, none of the topics that they talk about is anything that I would be uncomfortable even letting a teenager read it. I mean, it really is appropriate for anybody.

Jory Fisher: Well, thank you. I'm so glad that you allowed God to work through you in that way. Congratulations! What a beautiful thing for you to be able to get that out and publish and be able to help people with it. You're wonderful, Jennifer. Bless you, bless you, bless you.

Jennifer Miller: Thank you.

Jory Fisher: All right everybody, thank you all for listening to Heart & Soul for Women of Faith. This is Jory Fisher encouraging you to create optimal health for your life, ministry and business so you can fulfill your purpose with joy and grace, and glorify God through success. Would you like to say a little pray for everybody, Jennifer?

Jennifer Miller: I would love to. Heavenly Father Lord, I just lift up everybody who has listened, is listening, will listen, Lord, because You are present with us all and we just seek your guidance. Lord, we want to be on purpose. We want to know you more. We want to connect. We want to live a life that is fulfilling and rich and meaningful. Lord, that can only be done in You and through You. Lord, I just pray a blessing over everyone and I pray that you just continue to guide us, protect us, and provide for us. Lord, as you just continue to equip us and inspire us, just continue to open our heart, our mind, our soul to Your Presence and to Your Words, and to Your Wisdom and Your Ways. Lord, we thank You, we love You, and we praise You. We pray all these in Christ's name, amen.

Jory Fisher: Amen. Thank you so much, Jennifer. Well everybody, until we meet again. May the Lord bless you and keep you, and be gracious unto you. May the Lord grant you prosperity and peace. You're welcome to listen to this beautiful music by David Nevue and you can find more of his great recordings at DavidNevue.com. That's N-E-V-U-E. Bye now. Thank you, Jennifer. God bless you.

Jennifer Miller: Thank you.

Transcription by Alma Noefe