

Introduction:

Hello Everyone, this is Joan.

And this is John. Welcome to our group discussion session, September 26, 2017. And this is our first co-creative-interactive group discussion!

Now, many member of this group have asked us to conduct this type of session as a way to build on the group Unity that we all created together during our June Crystal Conference.

So..... Here we go.....!

[Followed by Gabriel's Centering Meditation]

Remarks from John:

Thank you, Gabriel, for reminding us of this wonderful Unity Consciousness that we formed. It's a great reminder and we appreciate that very much.

Now, Metatron has asked me to make a few comments about the importance of all of the group members participating in tonight's discussion. So, the only way I know how to do it is to tell a little story:

Back in the 1970's, a couple of people came up with the idea of making an airplane that would be invisible to any current detection device. Problem was – nobody knew anything and any way to make this machine! Of course, instead of throwing up their hands and saying it could not be done, which I'm sure they did the first time, a few of the folks got together and started a discussion.

During this discussion one of the parties asked a question: "You know, how do you eat a watermelon?" they asked. Well, everyone agreed that you would have to cut it up into many small pieces. So that was the way they set out to solve this new challenge.

They then put together small groups of specialists to handle specific tasks, i.e. where can we find a material that does not give off a radar signal? I'm mean that's impossible; nobody has one that exists. So of course, they had to go find all kinds of chemists and engineers and scientists and physicists, etc., etc. Needless to say, they found solutions to all of their specific unknowns and successfully built a stealth aircraft that most everyone thought was impossible.

Now, another historical event I think we can look at as another great example. And that was when somebody said, “How about sending a team of people to the moon!” And, of course, after they had a psych evaluation, they figured out that no, maybe that is something that we should think about.

Of course, the only thing that was a given was that they knew how to build a rocket. But – it could only fly a few miles and no one knew where or when it would land. Now, can you imagine the challenge when you start from where that group started!

Next they went to all of the engineering colleges and asked for help. Well, little by little, one person at a time, they were digging information. And of course, one of the brightest ones was when they interviewed an engineer at MIT and they said, “Do you have any new technologies that could help us?” And they said, “Well, there is this new thing called a computer.” Well guess what, they were appointed number one in the whole support group. They then needed some mathematicians to calculate the many unknowns, etc., etc., etc., all the challenges you could imagine.

And by the way, they made a movie recently about three ladies that became their designated math wizards. And they helped them immensely to solve all the math issues that they needed to solve to get this project off the ground.

At first, it sounded like an impossible dream, but, with a group of believers, they made this project come to life. Not only did they send a team to the moon, but they also returned them to Earth safely. That was a pretty good part of it! To me, WOW! What an amazing accomplishment.

Well, I find interesting that any specific group or persons that don’t hold the dream and ended up quitting.... well, guess what, they would not have had a moon trip: It took everybody pulling together to make this work, one person at a time.

Now, let’s talk about today or actually just a few years ago. There was a small group of people that asked the question, “Can we as Humans assist in the Ascension of the Planet and the Humans on it?” Even though they had received communications from Archangels, Masters, the Lords of Light, it appeared to be an impossible task.

But, like with the first two examples, it required many people with different pieces of the puzzle to come together to make a possible goal.

At this stage of the project, we are still a small group, and we must all participate to reach this seemingly impossible dream. What is very important to note is that we have all come here at this time because of our background with the Fall of Atlantis. As a matter of fact, Metatron has said we have all been there many, many times. Now, we have all come together at this time to assist one another to reverse what took place then and move us all towards the Ascension that we all desire.

If one of these groups that had been put together on the first two projects had quit, if anybody had quit or not spoken up when they had the knowledge of a correct solution to an issue and had let somebody run with one that they knew was incorrect, well again, there would have been no going to the moon and no invisible aircraft.

These projects were very important, but I don't believe they can hold a candle to our Ascension Project.

Therefore, I encourage you ALL to come out of your shells and understand how important each one of you are to this monumental project. During our group discussions, please let us all know what important information you hold that can bring success to our mutual goals.....

Don't be concerned, don't be afraid.
Be part of the solution.

Thank you!!!!!!!
