

A Message from Master Kuthumi

August 22, 2016

Beloveds, It is I Kuthumi,

I am very present with you now as you integrate the vast concepts and energetic templates that I gave to you during our last meeting. It is important for you to realize that you are not expected to utilize and integrate every part of this massive template. I was giving you an overview of what is available and how you as creators can manifest more swiftly and precisely in your life. It is unrealistic to think that you will achieve mastery in creating and manifesting with these massive Rays of Creation in just a few weeks or months.

Some of you had difficulty discerning how to apply some of the applications that have been given to you in recent teaching sessions. Understand that it will take some Earthly time as well as your dedication to work with the energetic templates. A step by step process has been created that will lead you through specific practical applications in your daily life. So when you are tempted to jump ahead or question what has been given, trust and relax into the energetics that are present so there is no resistance in the physical body. The physical body is having enough difficulty in adjusting to the immense amount of light that you are holding and emanating.

When you put yourself in the White Star Tetrahedron in your Sacred Heart consciousness you create a very refined environment from which to use these creative applications. There is less interference from the denser human collective consciousness. You also elevate your energetic field to a more refined expression. Your Sacred Heart consciousness is where you should always begin when you practice and use the creative teachings.

Let me start this message by reiterating that geometries help you bring nonphysical energies into a physical expression. They can give you a physical visual of your thoughts and feelings. They assist you to apply energetic applications precisely. Geometric configurations can and do show you where the anomalies exist in your thoughts and emotions that hinder your ability to manifest what is needed. They help you create preciseness. Geometries also create a more precise awareness of a particular focus that is needed. They are the vehicle from which you access certain energetic applications. Geometric progressions assist you in changing your belief system, especially in regards to being a victim of circumstances. They create a blueprint that gives you confidence in your creative ability. You then create a different outcome in your manifestation.

The Rays of Creation are immense. It takes Earth time for you to practice and apply the creative energetics that you have just recently been given. As we move further into these teachings we will slowly teach you to draw from this library of energetic applications. At first, these will be simple applications that you can use in your daily life. As you grow your mastership, more will be given. Your attention is required several times a week and in some instances daily attention. We have allotted the time between sessions for practice and application. This process will help you create a viable coherent mental/emotional body from which you create. This is imperative now.

It is important that you recognize when you are triggered and are in reaction. Notice how this limits your ability to create and manifest. Most often these reactions affect your emotions and put you into doubt or fear.

A simple geometry such as a triangle that we had you work with awhile back gives you the opportunity to stay focused on the creative task at hand. Each time you stayed aware and focused you were more coherent with the creative energetics that are within your mental/emotional body. You are successful in your manifestation because you have first created the energetic coherence in your body, and you can be confident in yourself as a creator. You relax into the process so that you begin to replicate it time and time again. When you can replicate the creative process, this eliminates the interference of triggers and reaction to them.

It is up to you to notice your progress. Look at the times that you were tempted to react because you were triggered but you chose differently because you remained focused on the geometry pattern that you had created. You were able to stay confident through knowing that you saw the trigger, made an application that you had laid out for yourself and manifested a desired result.

When you begin to use more complex geometries, this escalates the creative process and provides an avenue for you to add more complex energies, thoughts and emotions. You can align your thoughts with Universal mind which has many complex components. You can see the need for a different geometric configuration. There is an added advantage to using various geometries because they provide the opportunity to add numerous applications such as a color code that alter your emotions or a color code that provides the energetics to use your higher mind to create coherent thought. These geometries provide space in your creative blueprint to add one or a variety of different applications depending on what is specifically needed. Not all creations need complex applications. Some in your daily life only require a simple geometry and one energetic color code or perhaps a focused thought that immediately shifts your attention and allows you to manifest exactly what is needed in the moment.

Here is a more complex example. Let us use an example given by a participant's need that was voiced recently. He desired a bicycle.

Step 1: Determine what stands in the way of acquiring the bicycle. Don't limit the outcome. See that you could either purchase it or draw to you the opportunity to acquire it. I am sure you can think of many variables.

Step 2. Examine the thoughts and feelings around getting a bicycle. Draw a diagram using a simple geometry that holds your focus on your ability to create a coherent field of energies.

Step 3: As you consider what applications are needed and what structure is required to hold them note how your geometry has to be changed to a more complex configuration to hold these various applications. Ask yourself what specifically, you need in this creative process. Do you need a color code? Do you need an element of love and compassion for yourself?

Step 4: Diagram the applications that you have decided on by using a tetrahedron or a more complex geometry such as the cube that has all the geometries within it. The complexity of the geometrical environment is dependent on the composition of the number of applications that you wish to use.

*Keep in mind that some creations are simple and only need one application or adjustment in the energetics.

The 4th, 5th, and 6th Rays of creation provides a swifter manifestation process for day to day anomalies in your daily life experience. If you are triggered, recognize it immediately. Create a triangle for you to see the trigger or reaction precisely. Add another side to create a tetrahedron and make an application such as a blue color code or perhaps a yellow color code. In the presence of such coding your thought or your emotion immediately shifts and a coherent expression returns. There is harmony in your energetic space. Then move on to your day. Don't dwell on the why. Recognize that you created the solution and manifested a different field of energy. Being aware of your successes gives you confidence in your abilities. Confidence in yourself gives you attention points to focus on in your daily life. Little successes lead to larger more complex creative successes.

At the end of your day take 5 minutes to reflect on your achievements. Reviewing your victories gives confidence that you can hold for the next day's experience. You enter the day focused in a confidence that you are a competent creator. You can't just wish it. You must put movement, precise thoughts and feelings and most importantly the energetic applications that are needed.

You will be learning more about these applications in the months to come. The mastery that you gain using the 4th, 5th and 6th Rays of Creations opens the door to the energetic library that is in the 8th Ray of Creation. Be patient and continue to expand your mastery using the 4th, 5th, and 6th Rays. Pay attention in your daily life. Create the shifts that are needed and use some of the basic energetic applications that you already know how to use. I am with you and will guide you in your day to day creations.
