"The Lord will not be outdone in generosity."

Good Morning all,

Today's feast of Christ the King begins the final week of the liturgical year with its heavy focus on the end of times; death, heaven and hell. The latter we do not like to think about, but it is a possibility. I found this treatise by St Fulgentius of Ruspe who was a 5th-6th century bishop. Ruspe today is Tunisia. He was a reformer and a great defender of the faith. His treatise is entitled "He who overcomes shall not be harmed by the second death."

"In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye as the final trumpet sounds, for the trumpet shall indeed sound, the dead shall rise incorruptible and we shall be changed. In saying "we," Paul is indicating that the gift of that future change will also be given to those who during their time on earth united to him and his companions by upright lives within the communion of the Church. He hints at the nature of the change when he says: This corruptible body must put on incorruptibility, this mortal body immortality. In order, then, that men may obtain the transformation which is the reward of the just, they must first undergo here on earth a change which is God's free gift. Those who in this life have been changed from evil to good are promised that future change as a reward.

"Through justification and the spiritual resurrection, grace now effects in them an initial change that is God's gift. Later on, through the bodily resurrection, the transformation of the just will be brought to completion, and they will experience a perfect, abiding, unchangeable glorification. The purpose of this change wrought in them by the gifts of both justification and glorification is that they may abide in an eternal, changeless state of joy.

"Here on earth they are changed by the first resurrection, in which they are enlightened and converted, thus passing from death to life, sinfulness to holiness, unbelief to faith and evil actions to holy life. For this reason the second death has no power over them. It is of such men that the Book of Revelation says: Happy the man who share in the first resurrection; over such as he the second death has no power. Elsewhere the same book says: He who overcomes shall not be harmed by the second death. As the first resurrection consists of the conversion of the heart, the second death consists of unending torment.

"Let everyone, therefore, who does not wish to be condemned to the endless punishment of the second death now hasten to share in the first resurrection. For if any during this life are changed out of fear of God and pass from an evil life to a good one, they pass from death to life and later they shall be transformed from a shameful state to a glorious one."

Deacon Steve and I wish everyone a Happy Thanksgiving. Our Mass that day will be celebrated at 9:00 a.m. instead of 12:10 p.m.

*Sincerely in the Lord,
Father Joe Callipare*
