

EVEN IF YOU'RE A TOURIST, YOU DON'T GOTTA BE A JERK.

if you want to see the statue of liberty, times square, or eat at applebees, then go to hollywood. otherwise, here's fifteen of my favorite places in manhattan.

Russ & Daughters Café

Café
so refined and elegant. not terribly pricey, but not cheap. by far, the best traditional yet delicately modern jewish cuisine i've ever had in new york.

127 Orchard St, New York
(212) 475-4881 russanddaughterscafe.com

Comptoir Des Cotonniers

Apparel
everyone deserves better clothing.

153 Spring, New York

Il Buco Alimentari & Vineria

Italian
lovely and unfussy. excellent service. you'll often find chuck close dining there.

53 Great Jones St, New York
(212) 837-2622 ilbucovineria.com

David Zwirner Gallery

Art Gallery
has struck a good balance between showcasing well-established artists and recently emerging artists. crowded on weekends.

525 W 19th St, New York
(212) 727-2070 davidzwirner.com

Sel Rose

Cocktail
nice cocktails, exquisite oysters, and no attitude, but don't go during the weekend.

1 Delancey St, New York
(212) 226-2510 selrose.com

Balthazar

French
wonderful breakfast spot, popular with inflatable creatives, fashionistas, writers and that whole lot. if you want privacy, then lafayette is a better option.

80 Spring St, New York
(212) 965-1414 balthazarny.com

Buvette

French
cosy spot on a charmingly quiet street in the west village. it does everything that i know you like: unpretentious but busy, rustic but big city, fine fare.

42 Grove St, New York
(212) 255-3590 ilovebuvette.com

Dover Street Market

Boutique
because you still deserve good clothing.

160 Lexington Ave, New York
(646) 837-7750
newyork.doverstreetmarket.com

Landmark Diner

Breakfast
it's not a gimmick that the line order cooks wear the paper hats from the 1950s. greasy spoon, a rare breed still standing.

158 Grand St, New York
(212) 334-0040 landmarkdinery.com

Freemans

American
located at the end of an alley, rustic farm to table fare - one of the first to do it for the scenesters in manhattan. often crowded but just as often very fun.

1 Freeman Aly, New York
(212) 420-0012 freemansrestaurant.com

Cafe Gitane at The Jane Hotel

French
lovely moroccan in a wes anderson setting. tiny dioramas in the bathroom. one would hardly complain if compelled to have drinks in the jane ballroom beforehand.

113 Jane St, New York
(212) 255-4113 cafegitaneny.com

Red Rooster

Southern / Soul
it's a trek, but instead of sending you to The Copenhagen for scandihoovian fare, i'd rather you go to marcus samuelsson's harlem gem. a better experience.

310 Malcolm X Blvd, New York
(212) 792-9001 redroosterharlem.com

Nancy Whiskey Pub

Dive Bar
dive bar frequented by cops, it's fun and authentically local. of cultural and community significance after september 11. hard-nosed kat works behind the bar.

1 Lispenard St, New York
(212) 226-9943 nancywhiskeypub.com

The Hole

Art Gallery
because it will annoy you, but you need to know these things.

312 Bowery, New York
(212) 466-1100 theholeny.com

Rubin Museum of Art

Art Museum
as a quiet alternative to MoMA, the Whitney, Cooper and the Met. i have no complaints about any of them - and MoMA once carried my work, so who am i to kvetch?

150 W 17th St., New York
(212) 620-5000 rmany.org
