CRYSTAL L. BASS

Is this course for you?

This course is for aspiring storytellers who would like to shorten their learning curve. Or, current storytellers who need to know how to develop their stories properly. We give step-by-step assistance with monetizing stories much faster than our clients would have, had they continued to do it on their own. We push our clients to overcome the obstacles and roadblocks that come along with storytelling.

Which one are you?

Aspiring Storyteller:

We serve aspiring storytellers or writers who have big dreams and ideas of sharing a story but do not know where to start. We assist those clients from start to finish. This includes streamlining the process of completing a story, systematic guidance on telling a story, and clarification on how to ensure that the story will be profitable.

The Procrastinating Storyteller:

This person may have already started storytelling but is unsure of its potential marketability and lacks overall confidence. The procrastinating storyteller or writer may have been struggling for years to bring a dream to reality. This person starts and stops lacking focus to complete the project without assistance and accountability of a coach.

The Frustrated Hobby Storyteller/Writer:

This person has a finished product and is extremely frustrated because while they have been developing a story for years, they don't have the profit to show for it. This person needs to master the business aspect in order to finally turn their passion into a paycheck. The Frustrated Hobby Storyteller/Writer needs assistance with tapping into new resources and systems to help them achieve their revenue goals when it comes to their story idea.

Who are our ideal clients?

Our ideal clients are writers, aspiring writers, storytellers or aspiring storytellers who have a sense of urgency with taking their creativity to the next level and are committed to doing whatever it takes to achieve their writing and storytelling goals.
