ABOUT
PATRICIA WOOSTER

Patricia is a former corporate software executive turned traditionally published author of 13 books. She is the founder of WoosterMedia that transforms leaders, entrepreneurs, athletes, influencers, and thought leaders into published authors who amplify their message through high impact books.

She has worked on over 350+ traditional publisher projects and helped countless others self-publish their books. She coaches people through the process of creating a transformational experience for their readers by mastering their message, engaging with their readers, and adhering to the high standards set by the traditional publishing industry. Her clients have landed agents, publishing contracts, speaking opportunities, and bestseller status.

Her goal is to help people put pen to paper, so they can inspire the world with their words.
