Building Highly Functional Results-Oriented Teams

Duration: 12 Hours

Recommended Format: 3 Half-day Sessions

$1,164 per seat

Course Description

In this course, you'll learn tactics for building result-oriented teams that work seamlessly as co-located, remote, or hybrid teams. You'll learn to assess and improve your team's effectiveness at building trust, leveraging conflict, inspiring commitment and holding one another accountable — all while remaining laser-focused on delivering the results for which the team was assembled. This fun, highly interactive course includes break-out rooms, games, polling, chat and a closing round of Jeopardy to reinforce concepts.

Duration: 12 hours (3 Half-day Sessions)

Learning Objectives

- Identify your team's most significant growth area
- Explain the inverse relationship between remote teams and trust
- Distinguish safe trust from unprotected trust
- Describe your trust propensity
- Describe effective tactics for earning and sustaining trust across geographically dispersed and co-located teams
- Explain why conflict is a prerequisite for effective team building
- Identify your preferred conflict style
- Learn when you should avoid conflict, accommodate the other party, defend your position, compromise or collaborate for a win-win outcome
- Learn to minimize the relationship cost of using each conflict style
- Describe the three drivers of a highly committed team
- Identify 6 strategies for maintaining and increasing your commitment level to team objectives
- Explain why team-wide accountability can produce incomparable results
- Describe how to practice team-wide accountability without sacrificing team rapport
- Explain why hybrid teams must re-think performance
- Describe effective ways to monitor, evaluate and drive results across remote, co-located and hybrid teams
