a sequel to 'the last three years'

by julia schemmer

dedicated to the people who are still in construction these words are for you these words are for us

“Imagine yourself as a living house.

God comes in to rebuild that house.

At first, perhaps, you can understand what He is doing. He is getting the drains right and stopping the leaks in the roof and so on; you knew that those jobs needed doing and so you are not surprised.

But presently He starts knocking the house about in a way that hurts abominably and does not seem to make any sense. What on earth is He up to?

The explanation is that He is building quite a different house from the one you thought of - throwing out a new wing here, putting on an extra floor there, running up towers, making courtyards.

You thought you were being made into a decent little cottage: but He is building a palace.

He intends to come and live in it Himself."

-CS Lewis

part one

muck and gut

Muckout is the removal of mud, muck, silt and other typically semi-solid material from a home as a result of water inundation.

Gutting is the tearing out and removal of construction related materials from a home that has been damaged by water, including protruding nails in exposed studs and flooring.

“there is no greater agony than bearing an untold story inside of you.” –maya angelou sometimes

(most of the time)

i long to disappear

(i want to be found)

a poem for my problems

you took away who i was and yet it was still me who apologized it was still me who wondered what i did wrong what i could have done differently to make the furious fires falter to save a shred of myself that you skillfully stored away you crave the words 'i'm sorry' yet are the reason why i apologize you love the remodel but are the reason why i flooded i will not stand for a love dependent on manipulation you turned me into someone i vowed

i would never become for even storms catalyze with a single drop i am an earthquake of unrequited love i am sorry you witnessed the rubble and that it was you who saw me tremor

it's not your fault

Home is the sequel to Julia Schemmer's first poetry collection, The Last Three Years. It details the stages of returning home and healing in four stages: mucking and gutting, sanitation, rebuilding and homecoming. Largely inspired by her year of volunteering in disaster zones, Schemmer hopes this book reaffirms people who are also healing in knowing that they are not alone during the process.
