Chapter one WARNING! If you dare to read this story, keeping reading; if not, drop the book now, don't say i didn't warn you! - Anna "HELP! HELP!" My voice was full of fear, as two wolves chased me. They were getting closer and closer. God, help me! I don't want to die! I prayed in my heart. No-oh, no! In front of me was a cliff, rocks dropped to the ground hundreds of feet below. Behind were the hungry wolves with fangs sharp as razor blades. God, what should I do? I had two options, either go back and get killed by the bloodthirsty wolves or jump down to the deep cliff below. If you were me, what would you do? I am sure you will probably do the same thing. I closed my eyes, held out my arms, and fell over the edge of the cliff. The wolves barked hysterically, angry at themselves for letting their dinner get away. I never thought I would die like this, but it was a great way to die. It was so peaceful that it made me want to stay like this forever, but of course I couldn't because of the law of gravity. Then I started to drop like a rock, suddenly something came toward me. I thought it was a rock at first, but it got brighter and brighter as it getting closer and closer to me. Then I realized I started going up, and I saw angels. Angels that glowed. I felt jubilant inside - I didn't have to die today. Chapter two I woke up with a feeling: something wet was touching my face, and I realized it was Molly licking my face. I fell back on my bed, glad it was just a dream. I hated that dream; it was always the same thing: running in the forest, being chased by wolves, falling off a cliff, then some angels rescuing me. The weird thing is why was I in the forest? It was chilly, but I forced myself out of my cozy bed. I opened my bedroom window; I love the view of the clear blue sky, the deep shadows and the sounds of the birds singing. I got dressed, could not wait to go outside and enjoy the cool breeze of the morning air. I planted some strawberry seeds months ago and now I could see the shy "faces" of the strawberries behind the leaves. It smelled wonderful, because I could even taste the sweetness of the strawberries in the air, it made me dizzy. And it made me want to pick some. I spent the rest of the morning reading, the fact I was reading "Little Red Riding Hood" reminded me the dream I had this morning about going to the woods and some bloodthirsty wolves trying to eat me. I couldn't even think about it, it made me feel uncomfortable. I spent some time playing with Molly in the backyard during the afternoon. "Time for dinner, Anna!" My mom yelled from the kitchen. "A minute, mom!" I yelled back. I cleaned the backyard and put all Molly's toys in a box before ran to the kitchen. I was so hungry that I finished my dinner in seconds, and I realized I didn't eat any breakfast and lunch except a couple of strawberries. After I finished my dinner I remembered I forgot to close the backyard door, so I sprinted outside, and of course you would guess what happened next: Molly was GONE. I looked all over the house but couldn't find her. I ran out of the house, thinking that maybe Molly went to the park. I didn't find Molly in the park, but I find something else: Molly's collar. This meant that Molly was here before, and I was sure that Molly lost it today because I saw her wearing it this afternoon. I ran to the collar, and something amazing happened... Chapter three When I touched the collar, suddenly, I appeared in a forest. I could hear wolves howling behind me, their sharp teeth made me shudder. I saw smile on their faces, because they had something to eat for dinner today. Then, I started to run as I never ran before. I even ran faster than the time I was chased by some people dressed as zombie when I trick or treat last Halloween. Dear god, please help me! I prayed deeply in my heart. UH-OH! In front of me was a cliff, rocks dropped to the ground hundreds of feet below. The wolves howled happily as they approached their dinner. What should I do? Go back? But the wolves will eat me! Jump down to the cliff below? I would crash to death! But I might have a chance to live if I jump off the cliff. I really hope I had a parachute... Then I did the stupidest thing I never done before: I closed my eyes, held out my arms, and let myself fall over the edge of the cliff. The wolves howled hysterically, angry at themselves for letting their dinner get away. I started to drop like a rock, nothing like the felling I felt in my dream. Then I saw something glowing on top of me, it got brighter and brighter. I see angels, and this was not a dream. Chapter four "Who are you?" asked the first angel as we arrived to the surface. "My name is Anna," I replied. Then I told the angels the whole story from how molly was missing to how I jumped off the cliff. "My name is Cathy, and she's Ann," the angel said, "Do you have any idea where you are now?" I shook my head dumbly. "Well, you are in the "World of Angels", the reason you got here means you are going to save our world." Exclaimed Cathy. "What do you mean I am going to save your world?" I said, surprised. "A clairvoyant said that a hero is going to save our world," explained Cathy. I hope she didn't think the "hero" is me. The only thing I worried about was how will I get home. "Of course I think the hero is you, who else could it be?" said Cathy. I was shocked, how could she know what I am thinking? "Um, you can um... read minds?" I asked, surprised. "Yep, it is a special ability I have, and there is no way you are going home." I was shocked; I had to get home, because my parents would worry about me. "Unless you kill the monster and broke the magical trap. I don't think even a fly could get out of here," said Cathy. I sighed sadly. "Who was this mon-" Then I heard a roar that was loud enough to wake the whole wide world. "Ann, you two can go back to the big house, I will take care the monster," said Cathy seriously. And she flew off, leaving Ann and me alone. "Come on, Anna!" Ann said. Then Ann took me to the big house they'd talked about. Chapter five I was shocked when I saw the big house. It was enormous and peaceful. There was a big water fountain with a sculpture of an angel on the top, and on each side of the house were gardens with colorful flowers and bleachers that sparkled under the sun. Behind the big house was a big pond, goldfishes swam happily, water lilies floated around the surface. Peach trees covered the whole backyard; I could even smell the aroma of the peaches in the air. So, I picked one and took a bite of it, it was so yummy! I never ate anything tastier than this before, Never. "No!" screamed Ann. "What? Are there any monsters?" I asked Ann as I looked around me. "No! You ate one of the peaches, it grew only once every ten years!" complained Ann. "Oh... I am sorry," I said shamefully. "It's okay, just don't do it again," Ann said, but she didn't look okay. Ann led me into the big house, the inside were fancier than the outside.

Then I met another angel named Zach. He wore a blue T-shirt and jeans; he looked French with brown hair and an attractive smile. "How do you like it here?" he asked nicely. "Good, but I really want to go home," I complained. "But you need to help us fight the monster," said Zach. Oh, I almost forgot the monster business... "Who is this monster?" I asked curiously. "The witch of the sky set a trap around us so we won't be able to go to heaven unless we find the three magic items," Zach explained. I didn't like the word "witch", but I had to do everything to get home. "What are the three magic items?" I asked. Chapter six "The three items are: the mirror of the mermaid queen, the slippers of the witch, and the ring of Armic," explained Zach. "But this is a hard task, a lot of people went on the quest, but none of them came back successful. Some never came back, some came back injured... Anyway, I hope you are not one of them." Ann said. I have no idea who was the mermaid queen and where she lives; who is this witch and where she lives; and where is the Armic Mountain? For the most important part, I don't have any weapons. "And of course, we will help you," said Zach. Then he took out three things: a brown round ball that looks like a piece of chocolate, a normal tennis shoe, and a jacket. "You probably know the mermaids live under the sea, so this pill will help you breathe underwater," he said as he held the chocolate. "It may look like a normal shoe to you, but it could go as fast as you want it to when you tapped it three times. It's even faster than the witch's broomstick." Ann said as she looked at the shoe. "And this," Zach held the jacket, "will protect you from fire." I looked at the three magic items surprisingly, for they could be my lifesavers. "You will know the right time to use them, and don't worry if you lose them. It will reappear in your bag by itself," said Ann. I was so happy about that, because I lost a lot of stuff. "Okay. We will send you to the ocean tomorrow, so have a good night sleep." Ann said. And they disappeared, leaving me alone. I wondered what kind of monsters I would see tomorrow, but at least they gave me three magic items that would help me a lot, and I fell asleep... Chapter seven I woke up to a sound of someone banging on my door. "One minute, Mom!" I said. I got out of my comfortable bed and did a quick yawn. Then I realized I was in the World of Angels. Sadness poured all over me again, because I missed my parents already. I had to finish this stupid quest in order to get home, however. I got up and opened the door. "Good morning, Anna! Did you get ready for the quest?" asked Ann. "I guess so..." I said sleepily. "Okay then, we are going to send you to the sea after you finish your breakfast." Ann said. "Okay," I said sadly. After breakfast, we arrived at the sea. "Well, we can only take you here; you are on your own from now on." Zach said. "You might want to eat the pill we gave you yesterday," said Ann. "By the way, the pill only lasts for an hour." Zach added. "What do you mean it only lasts for an hour?" I asked, confused. "After one hour it will lose its effectiveness, and you won't be able to breathe underwater anymore." Ann explained. I was shocked, only one hour? I need way more time than that. I would definitely drown after one hour or be eaten by some sea sharks. "I think I need more time than that," I complained. "Just try your best, and use your time wisely." Zach said. Then they pushed me down to the water. The water was freezing cold, and there was nothing around me instead of darkness. I couldn't see anything, and my body was shaking uncontrollably. I had never been this scared before, I really want to go home. Then I heard voices, girls' voices. I felt hope inside me again and started to swim toward the voice. Chapter eight I could not believe what I saw! Two mermaids with tattoos and piercings all over their arms, the sight made me scared again. Aren't mermaids supposed to be very beautiful and kind, and always sitting on a rock brushing their hair? Then they saw me, and started to swim toward me. I was scared. I should have turned around and swam as fast as I could, but I couldn't for some reason. The mermaids were mumbling something to each other in a different language, a mixture of grunts and clicks sounding quite odd to my ear. I hope they were not saying: Oh, we have something to eat for lunch today. Then, I saw another mermaid swimming towards me. She was scarier than the other two mermaids. She had tattoos, rings all over her body, and a crown on her head. She was probably the queen, for she had a golden chain around her neck connected to a mirror. She said something to the mermaids in the grunts and clicks language. They swam away, leaving me and the queen alone. She started to look at me from head to toe in a cautious and disgusted way, like I was some type of bomb. "Ah, human, I guess you are coming for my mirror?" she said sarcastically as she looked at her mirror. "Yes, ma'am..." I said fearfully. "Why are you so afraid? I'm not going to eat you like the other two want, and why do you want my mirror?" she said. I tried to control the fear over me, but it didn't work. "I am on a quest," I said, trying to calm down. "Well, why should I give my mirror to you?" said the queen, not looking at me. "I won't be able to go home unless I have the mirror," I said. "Well, that's not any of my business," said the queen. I should probably think of that, they are cold-hearted. How about... "What's the mirror good for?" I asked curiously. "The mirror knows everything," the queen said proudly. "Everything? I am not sure about that..." I said calmly. "Ask me something then?" the queen said. The mirror knows everything, so I had to ask her something that doesn't exist, something I made up by myself... I thought. "How about this: I will ask you three questions, if you answer two of the questions correctly, you can keep the mirror, but if you get two answers wrong, the mirror will be mine, deal?" I asked. "Deal, I am definitely going to win!" said the queen with confidence. "Well, let's see about that? And you have to swear if you lose, you will give the mirror to me, or you will get punished," I said happily. "I swear," she said seriously. "The first question..." Chapter nine "First question..." I said thoughtfully. "Um...What keeps going up but never comes down?" I asked happily. She turned around and said something softly to her mirror. She was probably asking her mirror for the answer. After a minute, she turned around and looked disappointed. I guess the mirror didn't know the answer either. "I...I don't know, but I will get the next one right. So, what's the answer?" she asked. "The answer is... I will tell you later. Okay, here comes number two: What gets higher when the temperature gets hotter?" I asked with confidence. She turned around and asked the mirror again. When she turned around, I was scared. There was a smile on her face, which meant she got the answer! Crab! If she got number three right, she won't give me the mirror. Number three had to be very hard and tricky... "The answer is... the thermometer!" the queen said with joy. "Congratulations, you are right," I said disappointed. "If I get number three right you have to stay here forever, and if I get it wrong, which is impossible, I will give you the mirror. That was the deal, right?" she asked. "Right, here comes number three, the final question... You could do it, I could do it, and everybody could do it. One person could do it, but two people together couldn't do it," I asked anxiously for the reason I just remembered I could only stay underwater for one hour. "This one is easy; I don't even need ask the magical mirror! The answer is college!" she said with excitement. I didn't know why she thought it was college, but she got the answer wrong. "Nope, the answer is, 'Dreaming'! Two people can't dream together, can they?" I asked. "That was a tricky question, what was the answer for number one?" she asked. "Okay, the answer to number one is... well, you can guess it by yourself," I said happily. Chapter ten "You are right, how about stay here for a while? You can go after a snack," asked the queen nicely. I didn't think that was a good idea, because I was afraid she will eat me for a snack. The tattoos and piercing on her body still made me aware of her. "Uh, I could only stay underwater for an hour, so I have to leave now," I said and started to swim. "Well, I have some pills that will help people breathe underwater," said the queen as two pills appeared in her hand. They looked exactly like the one Zach gave to me. But maybe they were poisoned... "It's not poisoned," said the queen. She swallowed one of them, so I ate the other pill. The queen clapped her hands, and a dinner table and chair appeared with a menu. My stomach started to grumble, so I picked up the menu and opened it. I expected to see gross things like "worm soup" and "frog legs". But to my surprise, there were appetizers, soups, burgers, deserts and everything else I loved to eat. I ordered a burger and French fries with a glass of coke. Two invisible servants came and took my order. That was the only way I can explain why the menu just floated in the water and disappeared. "Why do you think the answer to number three was 'college'?" I asked curiously. "Oh, a boy came before and asked me if he can have the mirror. Then he gave me a riddle similar to the one you just gave to me and he said the answer is college," The mermaid queen replied. "Where is he now?" I asked. "You really want to know?" she asked. "Uh-huh." "He fell in love with a mermaid, and got eaten by a shark for punishment." My mouth hung open. I never heard anything ridiculous than this before. Fell in love with a mermaid, and got eaten by a shark? Then I closed my mouth before any fish swam into it. "What happened to the mermaid?" I asked sadly. "She hit a rock and died," The queen said it like it was not a big deal. What? I thought I'd better leave before I fell in love with a boy and got eaten by a shark. Then the food just appeared on the table. The smell of the burger and French fries made my stomach grumble again. So I started to eat like I hadn't have any food for days. I will leave after I finished my food, I thought, but can I? Chapter eleven The answer to that question was no. I should have known that the mermaid queen wouldn't keep her promises. Why did I believe her? The queen must have put some magic potion in my coke. After I drank it, I felt dizzy and sleepy. When I woke up, I was tied to a really big and heavy bed. Crabs with swords as sharp as needles stood at each side of me, and there was no way to escape. If I do, the crabs would stab me to death. I should have known that the quest was not that easy to complete and the mermaid queen was not that stupid. The door opened and the queen swam toward me. I shot her a glare. "You broke your promises! You will get punished!" I screamed at her. I felt like I would explode with anger. I wanted to slap her face and teach her a lesson, but my hands were tied too. "Why did you believe me?" she asked in a sarcastic voice. "Because you swore that if I won, you will give the mirror to me!" I said angrily. "But do you know that I can't die, because I am the Queen? I can do anything I want!" The queen laughed coldly. "You don't earn respect from others, so you shouldn't be the queen!" I said scornfully. Her face turned red, and she looked like she want to kill me, but for some reason, she didn't. Tell her that you had seen the past and the future. Who was speaking? I thought as I looked around me carefully. Chapter twelve Tell her you have seen the past and the future. The voice said again. "You will get punished! I can see your past and future." I said angrily. "Then tell me something about my past." she said. Voice! What should I say? She had a sister, and her parents liked her sister more than her. "Ha! I know you are lying. You don't know anything about my past and future. If you do, you should predict that I will kill you," she said happily. "Oh yeah? I am afraid that if I told you, you will be scared and kneel in front of me asking for help, and that would be very embarrassing," I said sarcastically. This time she was mad. Her face turned purple. I could even feel the anger around her body. "SAY IT! OR I WILL KILL YOU!" she screamed angrily. "You had a sister, and your parents like her more than you, and you were very jealous of her," I said calmly. That made the difference. There was no longer madness in her eyes, but instead there was fear. "How... how do you know that?" she said, sounding scared. "I told you, I know your past and future." "Do you... know anything else?" she asked cautiously. She was very jealous of her sister, so she killed her, the voice said. "You were very jealous of your sister, so you killed her," I said. This time her face was full of sadness and fear. "I regret killing her. My parents were very sad after she died and I feel... lonely. They didn't know I was the one who killed her." I had the same felling, don't get me wrong. I didn't mean I regret for killing someone before because I never did. It's just that since my little brother came into the world, my parents gave all their attention to him. I knew the feeling of jealousy, although I had a lot great time with him. "Well... it's understandable. But you shouldn't kill her, since she was your sister. You guys never had any great time together?"

A story about a girl from the twenty-first century who accidentally traveled back to the 'World of Angels' where she met both friends and enemies. She had to complete three quests and found three magical items in order to get home. Her lost dog accidentally transferred too! She also found out she had a Voice inside her head. Is the Voice her enemy or friend? What romantic and interesting things will happen on her way? Will she find her own 'prince'? Will she conquer the evil and successfully bring back the three magical items? Will she get home eventually? Join me on this funny, adventurous ride and you'll find all the answers!
