Welcome to KQED Learn!

Teacher Sign Up
When you log on to the site for the first time, you will be prompted to complete your profile, including your
- Name (and salutation)
- Primary role
- School/organization zip code

You will then be able to select your school/organization from a list or add it if it’s not already in the list.

From your profile page, click on the gear icon to
- Edit your profile: Add an avatar/photo and a short bio
  - Note: Photos must be under 200 KB
- Create a class: Add the name of your class (e.g. Biology - 1st period), choose the subject and grade level(s), and enter a description of your class
  - After you create a class, you will be sent to your class overview page. The join code for your students is on the right side of page.

Student Sign Up
Students sign up for KQED Learn by entering an email address and password into the log-in fields.
- IMPORTANT: Students choose a password they can remember. We recommend also keeping a record of their KQED Learn password. Password recovery emails often don’t get through school firewalls.

They will then be prompted to complete their profiles, by entering their first and last names.
- Note: While students are required to enter their last names, last names will only be visible to their own teachers. Everyone else on the site will see [first name, last initial].

Students will be sent to their profile page. They can click on the gear icon to
- Edit their profile: Add an avatar/photo and a short bio
- Join a class: On the right side, they enter your class join code under “Join class.” The class will show up on their profile page.
  - IMPORTANT: Make sure all students join a class. It is possible to navigate the site without joining a class. But you will have no record of student participation on the site unless they join a class.
