UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON AT SEATTLE

ELENA KOLOVA, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

ALLSTATE INSURANCE
COMPANY, et al.,

Defendants.

CASE NO. C19-1730JLR

ORDER GRANTING MOTION TO REMAND AND AWARDED ATTORNEYS' FEES AND COSTS

I. INTRODUCTION

Before the court is Plaintiffs Elena Kolova, Benjamin Risha, and Riza Khanlari's (collectively, "Plaintiffs") motion to remand this case to King County Superior Court. (MTR (Dkt. # 4).) Defendant Allstate Insurance Company ("Allstate") opposes the motion. (Resp. (Dkt. # 11).) Plaintiffs also seek an award of attorneys' fees and costs incurred as a result of Allstate's removal. (See MTR at 1.) The court has considered Plaintiffs' motion, all submissions filed in support of and opposition to the motion, the 1 relevant portions of the record, and the applicable law. Being fully advised,<sup>1</sup> the court

2 GRANTS Plaintiffs’ motion, REMANDS this case to state court, and GRANTS 3 Plaintiffs’ motion for costs and fees.

4 II. BACKGROUND

5 This is an insurance case in which Plaintiffs, condominium owners with properties 6 in the same complex, assert bad faith and breach of contract claims in King County 7 Superior Court against their insurer, Allstate, as well as claims for violations of 8 Washington’s Consumer Protection Act, RCW ch. 19.86, and Insurance Fair Conduct 9 Act, RCW 48.30.015. (See Compl. (Dkt. # 1-2) ¶¶ 1.1-3.3.) Plaintiffs filed their initial 10 complaint in April 2018. (See id.) As part of the same action, Plaintiffs also sued Bryon 11 Dill, an Allstate agent who handled at least one of Plaintiffs’ claims; Mr. Dill’s wife; and 12 Jane and John Does 1-10 (“Doe Defendants”).<sup>2</sup> (Id. ¶¶ 1.3-2.1.)

13 Allstate, a citizen of Delaware and Illinois, previously removed the matter based 14 on diversity jurisdiction, despite Mr. Dill’s shared Washington citizenship with Plaintiffs.
15 Kolova v. Allstate Ins. Co., No. C18-1066JCC, 2018 WL 5619052, at *1 (W.D. Wash.
16 Oct. 30, 2018) (“Kolova I”). In its first notice of removal, Allstate argued that the case 17 should be removed because Mr. Dill and his wife were not necessary and indispensable 18

19 <sup>1</sup> No party requests oral argument (see MTR at 1; Resp. at 1), and the court does not 20 consider oral argument helpful in its disposition of the motion, see Local Rules W.D. Wash.
LCR 7(b)(4).

21 <sup>2</sup> The court does not consider the citizenship of fictitious “Doe” defendants for purposes 22 of assessing removal based on diversity jurisdiction. See 28 U.S.C. § 1441(b)(1); see also Bryant v. Ford Motor Co., 886 F.2d 1526, 1528 (9th Cir. 1989).

1 parties under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 19 and 21. Id.; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 19, 21.
2 Plaintiffs, in turn, moved to remand the case, and the court granted that motion on 3 October 30, 2018. Kolova, 2018 WL 5619052, at *3. The Kolova I court rejected 4 Allstate’s argument that Rules 19 and 21 were applicable to the court’s jurisdictional 5 analysis in considering Plaintiffs’ motion to remand. Id. Instead, the court held that its 6 analysis was governed by the doctrine of fraudulent joinder. Id. The court reasoned that 7 “[t]o argue that the Dill[s] . . . were fraudulently joined would be untenable in light of 8 Keodalah [v. Allstate Ins. Co.], 413 P.3d 1059, 1063 (Wash. Ct. App. 2018), rev’d, 449 9 P.3d 1040 (Wash. 2019)],” which at the time provided a separate cause of action against 10 the insurance adjuster, who in this case was Mr. Dill. See Kolova I, 2018 WL 5619052, 11 at *2.

12 The Washington Supreme Court reversed Keodalah in October 2019, one year 13 after this court’s first decision to remand this case, holding that insureds do not have a 14 separate cause of action against an insurance adjuster for bad faith. See Keodalah, 449 15 P.3d at 1046. Given the change in law, Plaintiffs and Allstate stipulated to the dismissal 16 of Mr. Dill and his wife on October 22, 2019. (See Stip. (Dkt. # 1-5); MTR at 2.) Once 17 Mr. Dill was no longer a party, Allstate removed the case for a second time based on 18 diversity jurisdiction, on October 25, 2019. (See Not. of Removal (Dkt. # 1) at 1, 4.)

19 Plaintiffs’ counsel emailed Allstate’s counsel to: (1) advise Allstate that in the 20 absence of bad faith on the part of a plaintiff, 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c) bars removal more 21 than one year after an action commences; and (2) request that Allstate take steps to 22 withdraw its second notice of removal. (1st Bridges Decl. ¶ 1, Ex. 2 (Dkt. # 5) at 1.)

1 After Allstate refused to do so, Plaintiffs filed the present motion to remand and included 2 a request for attorneys' fees and costs under 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c).<sup>3</sup> (See MTR.) In 3 response, Allstate argues that Plaintiffs acted in bad faith when they named Mr. Dill as a 4 party, and therefore, Allstate's removal falls under the bad faith exception found in 28
5 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1). (See Resp. at 1, 4.)

6 III. ANALYSIS

7 The court first considers Plaintiffs' motion to remand, before turning to Plaintiffs' 8 request for attorneys' fees and costs.

9 A. Legal Standards

10 "A civil case commenced in state court may, as a general matter, be removed by 11 the defendant to federal district court, if the case could have been brought there 12 originally." Martin v. Franklin Capital Corp., 546 U.S. 132, 134 (2005); see 28 U.S.C.
13 § 1441(a). One such basis for removal is diversity jurisdiction, which exists if the suit is 14 brought between citizens of different states and the amount in controversy exceeds 15 $75,000. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a)(1). If a case is not initially removable, the defendant 16 may file a notice of removal within 30 days of receiving a copy of an amended pleading 17 or other paper form from which the defendant first ascertains that the case has become 18

19 <sup>3</sup> Plaintiffs cite 28 U.S.C. § 1441(c) in support of their request for fees and costs in both 20 their motion and their reply. (See MTR at 7; Reply (Dkt. # 13) at 5.) However, 28 U.S.C.
21 § 1441 does not mention cost nor fees. See 28 U.S.C. § 1441. Instead, the language Plaintiffs 22 quote in their motion makes it apparent that they intended to rely upon 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c).
(Compare MTR at 7 ("28 USC 1441(c) provides the removing party may be required to pay 'just costs and any actual expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred as a result of the removal.'")) with 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c) ("An order remanding the case may require payment of just costs and any actual expenses, including attorney fees, incurred as a result of the removal.")).

1 removable. 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b)(3). However, a case may not be removed on the basis 2 of diversity jurisdiction more than one year after commencement of the action unless the 3 district court finds that the plaintiff acted in bad faith in order to prevent a defendant from 4 removing the action. 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1).

5 It is a “longstanding, near-canonical rule that the burden on removal rests with the 6 removing defendant.” Abrego Abrego v. The Dow Chem. Co., 443 F.3d 676, 684 (9th 7 Cir. 2006). Furthermore, “[courts] strictly construe the removal statute against removal 8 jurisdiction.” Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992); see also Shamrock 9 Oil & Gas Corp. v. Sheets, 313 U.S. 100, 108-09 (1941).

10 B. Motion to Remand

11 No party disputes that Allstate filed its second notice of removal in this case based 12 on diversity jurisdiction more than one year after Plaintiffs commenced suit in state court.
13 (Compare Compl. (filed on April 30, 2018) with Not. of Removal (filed on October 25, 14 2019).) Therefore, unless the bad faith exception applies, Allstate’s removal is barred 15 under 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1) by the one-year limitation for removal based on diversity 16 jurisdiction. See 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1). Thus, the issue the court must resolve is 17 whether Plaintiffs acted in bad faith by first joining Mr. Dill and his wife.

18 Although the Ninth Circuit has not defined a standard for district courts to use 19 when evaluating the 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1) bad faith exception, district courts in the 20 Ninth Circuit have stated that “defendants face a high burden to demonstrate that a 21 plaintiff acted in bad faith to prevent removal.” Heacock v. Rolling Frito-Lay Sales, LP, 22 No. C16-0829JCC, 2016 WL 4009849, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Jul. 27, 2016). Further,

1 district courts apply a “strict standard” and find “bad faith when a plaintiff fail[s] to 2 actively litigate a claim against a defendant in any capacity.” Id. This standard is 3 consistent with the requirement to strictly construe the removal statute against removal.
4 Id.; see also Gaus, 980 F.2d at 566. District courts often consider three factors when 5 evaluating bad faith under 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1): “[t]he timing of naming a non-diverse 6 defendant, the timing of dismissal, and the explanation given for that dismissal.”
7 Heacock, 2016 WL 4009849, at *3.

8 It is instructive to consider cases in which courts have applied the foregoing 9 standards. For example, “[a] plaintiff who added a non-diverse defendant in response to 10 a defendant’s attempt to remove an action, and subsequently dismissed the defendant 11 shortly after the deadline for removal expired, was held to have acted in bad faith.” Id.
12 (citing NKD Diversified Enters., Inc. v. First Mercury Ins. Co., No.
13 1:14-cv-00183-AWI-SAB, 2014 WL 1671659, at *4 (E.D. Cal. Apr. 28, 2014)). Other 14 district courts have found bad faith when “plaintiffs failed to take any discovery from a 15 defendant or failed to serve them within the one-year period of limitation.” Id. (citing 16 Heller v. American States Ins. Co., Case No. CV 15-9771 DMG, 2016 WL 1170891, at 17 *3 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 25, 2016); Hamilton San Diego Apartments, LP v. RBC Capital
18 Markets, LLC, No. 14cv01856 WQH, 2014 WL 7175598, at *4 (S.D. Cal. Dec. 11, 19 2014)). However, this court declined to find bad faith when a plaintiff settled with non-20 diverse defendants one week after the one-year mark and dismissed them one month 21 later, see Bishop v. Ride the Ducks Int’l, LLC, No. C18-1319JCC, 2018 WL 5046050, at 22 *2 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 27, 2018), and when a plaintiff sought additional information about

1 a non-diverse defendant through indirect discovery, and then settled with that defendant 2 and dismissed the defendant from the case, see Stroman v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 3 No. C18-1297RAJ, 2019 WL 1760588, at *2 (W.D. Wash. Apr. 22, 2019). Although 4 courts have found bad faith where a plaintiff dismissed a non-diverse defendant without 5 conducting any discovery, courts consider even “bare minimum” discovery attempts to 6 not amount to bad faith. Heacock, 2016 WL 4009849, at *3 (quoting NKD Diversified 7 Enters., Inc., 2014 WL 1671659, at *5)).

8 Based on the three Heacock factors, the court does not find bad faith on the part of 9 Plaintiffs. See Heacock, 2016 WL 4009849, at *3. Plaintiffs named Mr. Dill and his 10 wife in their initial complaint, arguing that Mr. Dill “failed to exercise good faith in the 11 handling of [at least one Plaintiff’s] claim.” (See Compl. ¶ 2.6.) Plaintiffs then dismissed 12 the Dills nearly six months after the 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1) one-year period of limitation 13 for removal had lapsed. (See id.; Stip. at 1.) The timing of these two activities does not 14 indicate that Plaintiffs included the Dills in the action merely to fraudulently defeat 15 diversity jurisdiction. See Bishop, 2018 WL 5046050, at *2 (finding no bad faith based 16 on timing of settlement negotiation emails). Furthermore, Plaintiffs’ basis for dismissing 17 the Dills was the Washington Supreme Court’s reversal of the appellate decision upon 18 which Plaintiffs relied in bringing their suit against Mr. Dill in the first place—a decision 19 that was beyond Plaintiffs’ control. (See Stip. at 1; MTR at 2); see also Keodalah, 449 20 P.3d at 1046. Not only is this explanation for dismissing the Dills not indicative of the 21 bad faith required under 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1)—it is not indicative of bad faith at all.
22 Indeed, based on the change in law, Plaintiffs were required to dismiss the Dills

1 following the Supreme Court’s reversal of the appellate court’s decision or risk a Federal 2 Rule of Civil Procedure 11 violation. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(b)(2) (“By presenting to the 3 court a pleading . . . or later advocating for it—an attorney . . . certifies that to the best of 4 the person’s knowledge, information, and belief . . . the claims . . . are warranted by 5 existing law . . .”).

6 Allstate’s arguments to the contrary do not persuade the court. Allstate argues that 7 the court should find bad faith as “[n]one of the written discovery issued by Plaintiffs was 8 addressed to the Dills.” (See Resp. at 5.) Although this appears to be true, Plaintiffs have 9 made at least a “bare minimum” discovery attempt in relation to Mr. Dill by submitting 10 interrogatories for the personal information of “each and every employee of [Allstate] 11 who participated in or otherwise contributed to the handling or adjustment of each and 12 every [of Plaintiffs’] claims.” (See Disc. Reqs. (Dkt. # 14-1) at 3); Heacock, 2016 WL 13 4009849, at *3. Additionally, this court previously found that Plaintiffs’ joinder of the 14 Dills was not fraudulent due to Plaintiffs’ valid claim against the Dills under state law at 15 the time. See Kolova I, 2018 WL 5619052, at *2. Finally, although Allstate asserts that 16 “Plaintiffs’ Complaint does not make any allegations of misconduct against the Dills” 17 (see Resp. at 5), Plaintiffs in fact allege that “[Mr. Dill] failed to exercise good faith in 18 the handling of [the] claim” (see Compl. ¶ 2.6). Thus, Allstate fails to meet its high 19 burden in demonstrating bad faith on the part of Plaintiffs.

20 In summary, the one-year removal limitation of 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1) applies 21 and the statute’s bad faith exception does not. Accordingly, the court GRANTS 22 Plaintiffs’ motion to remand this case to King County Superior Court.

1 C. Costs and Fees

2 Section 1447(c) allows a court to award “just costs and any actual expenses, 3 including attorney fees” incurred due to removal. 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c). “[A]bsent 4 unusual circumstances, attorney’s fees should not be awarded when the removing party 5 has an objectively reasonable basis for removal.” Martin, 546 U.S. at 136. However, the 6 court may award such fees and costs if the attempted removal was objectively 7 unreasonable. Id. at 141; Lussier v. Dollar Tree Stores, Inc., 518 F.3d 1062, 1065 (9th 8 Cir. 2008). The Ninth Circuit has found removal objectively unreasonable when “[t]he 9 relevant case law clearly foreclosed [the defendant]’s attempted removal.” Houden v.
10 Todd, 348 F. App’x 221, 223 (9th Cir. 2009) (citing Patel v. Del Taco, Inc., 446 F.3d 11 996, 999-1000 (9th Cir. 2006)).

12 In determining whether removal is objectively reasonable, district courts retain 13 discretion to consider whether unusual circumstances warrant a departure from that 14 general rule in a given case. Id. at 141. When so departing, the court’s reasons should be 15 faithful to the purposes of the awarding fees under 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c). Martin, 546 16 U.S. at 141. Those purposes include Congress’ desire to deter removals designed to 17 prolong litigation or to impose costs on an opposing party, while not undermining 18 Congress’ basic decision to allow defendants to remove as a general matter when 19 statutory criteria are met. See id. at 140.

20 Here, Allstate contends that removal was proper because it was bad faith for 21 Plaintiffs to include the Dills in the action (see Resp. at 5), although such inclusion was 22 proper under Washington law at the time, see Keodalah, 413 P.3d at 1063. Allstate

1 makes this argument despite this court’s 2018 remand of this case, in which the court
2 held that the Dills were not fraudulently joined parties under Washington law as it existed 3 at that time. See Kolova I, 2018 WL 5619052, at *3 (“To argue that the Dill[s] . . . were 4 fraudulently joined would be untenable in light of Keodalah[, which] . . . explicitly grants 5 a cause of action against the insurance adjuster in this case . . .”). Finally, Plaintiffs 6 notified Allstate of the one-year limitation at the time of Allstate’s second notice of 7 removal and provided Allstate with an opportunity to withdraw the notice. (1st Bridges 8 Decl. ¶ 2, Ex. 2 at 1.) Because the relevant case law, and indeed the court’s previous 9 rulings in this very case, foreclosed removal, and Allstate knew or should have known 10 about the relevant one-year bar to removal in 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1) for cases based on 11 diversity jurisdiction, Allstate’s second removal of this action was objectively 12 unreasonable. See Houden, 348 F. App’x at 223 (“The relevant case law clearly 13 foreclosed [the defendant’s] attempted removal; it was thus objectively unreasonable, and 14 the [plaintiffs] could have been awarded costs and fees under 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c).”).
15 Thus, the court GRANTS Plaintiffs’ request for attorneys’ fees and costs.

16 IV. CONCLUSION

17 Based on the foregoing analysis, the court GRANTS Plaintiffs’ motion to remand 18 and for an award of attorneys’ fees and costs. (Dkt. # 4.) The court ORDERS that:

19 1. Plaintiffs shall submit a brief not to exceed three (3) pages and a declaration 20 or affidavit detailing the reasonable attorneys’ fees and costs they incurred prosecuting 21 their motion to remand no later than seven (7) days from the entry of this order;

1           2.     Allstate may, but is not required to, file a responsive brief not to exceed 2 three (3) pages no later than ten (10) days from the date of this order;

3           3.     Except for the court's determination of reasonable attorneys' fees and costs 4 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c), all further proceedings in this case are REMANDED to 5 the Superior Court for King County, Washington;

6           4.     The Clerk shall send copies of this order to all counsel of record for all 7 parties;

8           5.     Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c), the Clerk shall mail a certified copy of the 9 order of remand to the Clerk for the Superior Court for King County, Washington;

10          6.     The Clerk shall also transmit the record herein to the Clerk of the Court for 11 the Superior Court for King County, Washington;

12          7.     Except for their briefs regarding attorneys' fees and costs, the parties shall 13 file nothing further in this matter, and instead are instructed to seek any further relief to 14 which they are entitled from the courts of the State of Washington, as may be appropriate 15 in due course; and 16          8.     The Clerk shall CLOSE this case.

17          Dated this 10th day of February, 2020.
