

International Law

Doing business across borders requires understanding a multiplicity of laws. In addition to all the nations where your business has interests, you may also need to worry about international treaties—and how all of these bodies of law may interact or conflict with each other. To make a robust business plan—and to stay out of legal trouble in all the jurisdictions where you do business—you need to understand your obligations.

The Eren Law Firm is uniquely qualified to handle this kind of work. Lead attorney Hal Eren and of counsel Steven I. Pinter are both former officials of the U.S. Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control, which handles issues related to sanctions against enemies of the United States. Special Counsel Victor D. Comras is a retired career diplomat from the U.S. State Department, where he handled strategic trade relations and economic sanctions, among other issues. After retiring from the State Department, he helped oversee the implementation of U.N. Security Council measures against terrorism.

Global Focus

We routinely advise our clients on all aspects of international business, from advice on understanding the law through interactions with regulatory agencies and representation in courts, administrative bodies, and international bodies. Our clients are financial institutions, businesses, individuals, and others who do business on a global scale.

We offer advice and representation concerning:

- Understanding clients' legal obligations in all applicable jurisdictions
- Understanding and resolving conflicts of law between jurisdictions
- Understanding and litigating international treaties
- Creating, interpreting, and litigating trans-jurisdictional commercial contracts
- Litigation in U.S. federal court, federal administrative bodies, and international tribunals
- Representation before U.S. financial regulatory bodies

- Representation in criminal matters with an international aspect, including extradition
- Assistance with court matters that cross borders, including service of process, obtaining evidence, authenticating documents, and enforcing judgments
- Business interactions with China

We also represent foreign embassies and governments in the United States that need legal assistance with:

- Issues of immunity for diplomats, or sovereign immunity for a government or government agency
- Banking relations and transactions
- Real estate transactions, acquisitions and disputes
- Issues of state succession, in which a state ceases to exist and another assumes its place for legal and diplomatic purposes
- Public relations
