Prisoners' Rights Litigation Attorney (Seattle, Olympia, or Spokane)

People with disabilities, people of color, formerly institutionalized or incarcerated individuals, and those from other oppressed groups and all protected classes are strongly encouraged to apply. Disability Rights Washington (DRW) looks forward to reviewing all applicants, including applicants who have concerns about how accepting this job could affect their eligibility for Medicaid or other programs.

Summary of Position

DRW's Amplifying Voices of Inmates with Disabilities (AVID) Program seeks a full-time prisoners' rights litigator with a demonstrated interest in conducting impact litigation to enforce the legal rights of incarcerated individuals enduring abuse, neglect, or other human and civil rights violations. This position will require a licensed attorney with the ability to conduct systemic investigations, develop complex advocacy strategies, and represent both classes and individuals. The AVID Program enjoys DRW's unique access authority, which will allow the attorney the ability to see firsthand the conditions in Washington prisons and jails, even in the most secluded and segregated parts of those facilities.

The ideal candidate would have lived and/or professional experience relating to the AVID Program's practice areas, which include, but are not limited to: addressing discrimination, improving conditions of confinement for people experiencing incarceration, supporting community reentry from institutionalization or incarceration, and ending abuse and neglect. The attorney for this position must have a commitment and capacity to produce high quality legal analysis and to provide effective advocacy through complex civil litigation as well as informal and alternative dispute resolution. All DRW attorneys must demonstrate dedication to DRW's values of inclusion, diversity, and equity ^[1] as well as the values of individual autonomy, community integration, universal accessibility, freedom from restraint, and respectful language. DRW seeks applicants who have the ability to work independently in a team of supportive colleagues and are seeking to join in our mission to "advance the dignity, equality, and self-determination of people with disabilities."

Responsibilities

Attorneys for the AVID Program provide an array of advocacy services to individuals with disabilities experiencing incarceration to enforce their rights under the Washington State and federal constitutions and laws such as the Washington Law Against Discrimination and the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Advocacy services by AVID Program attorneys may include, but are not limited to:

- Conducting systemic and individual investigations,
- Monitoring facilities for rights violations,
- Providing trainings and technical assistance,
- Engaging in informal advocacy and negotiations,
- Conducting impact litigation in state and federal courts, and
- Educating state and local policy makers.

Qualifications

The attorney must:

- Have a Juris Doctor degree from an accredited school of law and be a member in good standing of a state bar association and a member in good standing with the Washington State Bar Association within one year of assuming the position,
- Have the ability and desire to litigate,
- Demonstrate skills in the areas of investigation, interviewing, legal research, case strategy, administrative law, and advanced advocacy techniques,
- Demonstrate ability to effectively present information to a wide variety of audiences using a variety of media,
- Demonstrate ability to facilitate meetings and discussions,
- Maintain ethical and organizational standards, communicate a position well, respectfully consider other positions, and treat people of different positions and backgrounds with respect and dignity,
- Have lived and/or professional experiences involving disability rights issues or public interest law, and
- Maintain a clear Washington State Department of Corrections (DOC) background check status that allows visits to DOC facilities (previous criminal convictions are not an absolute bar).

It is desired that the attorney has:

- Multi-lingual ability in languages common to Washington State residents,
- 2 – 9 years of experience working as an attorney in a non-profit or public interest setting,

- Deep roots in the disability community with knowledge and experience in the independent living and self-advocacy movements.

Equal Opportunity Employer

Disability Rights Washington values diversity of culture, disability and other life experiences, and is an equal opportunity employer by choice. We do not discriminate on the basis of sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, age, national origin, religion, race, color, citizenship, veteran status, or disability. We endorse and support the intent of the Americans with Disabilities Act and Washington Law Against Discrimination and we are committed to providing reasonable accommodations to qualified individuals with disabilities who are applicants or employees who need accommodations.

About Us
