

Module 4

Working Together

Overview

In this panel, Crystal Lameman, Harsha Walia, Jessica Bolduc, Robin Sutherland, Rihkee Strap, Shannon Moan, Candace Neveau and Jon Cada talked about what it looks like to work together to build a new relationship between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Peoples. Here are a few questions to keep you thinking about the panel.

General

- 1) What does it mean for you to be an ally for Indigenous youth?
- 2) How can you create space for true and meaningful human-to-human interactions with Indigenous Peoples.
- 3) In what ways do you see yourself as part of the system? In what ways can you see yourself moving away from oppressing systems and towards solidarity?
- 4) Do you have experience working on projects that involve Indigenous Peoples and non-Indigenous Peoples? If so, what were the opportunities that this type of work presented? What challenges did you face? If this type of work is new to you, where would you be interesting in collaborating? Where could you look in your community to find opportunities?
- 5) What does a new relationship mean to you? What other perspectives would you like to hear on this and how could you access those perspectives?
