What is GEOCACHING?

Geocaching is a global high-tech treasure-hunt in which participants use a combination of online clues and GPS coordinates to find "caches" (hidden containers ranging in size from an ammo box to a bottle cap). The caches are often hidden in unique and interesting places which participants may never have discovered on their own, but some are concealed as mundane objects in plain sight. Currently, there are more than 1 million active participants and approximately 985,000 caches hidden in more than 100 countries.

For more information about Geocaching, please visit www.geocaching.com

The first 200 participants who complete the trail will receive a commemorative coin featuring the logos of the Gems of Rockbridge Geocaching Trail on one side and the 75th Anniversary of the Blue Ridge Parkway on the other.*
