Sign in, open in a new window Sign in, what is the credit limit that you open in the new Window Wealth Wealth Wealth Wealth? For example, let's have a $6,000 credit card limit. Do not hold purchases (balances) of $6,000 or more at any particular time. Tip: To improve your credit score, Canada's Financial Consumer Authority recommends using less than 35% of your credit limit. So, if you have a credit limit of $6,000, you can always keep your balance below $2,000. How are credit credit limits determined? If you have a good credit history, you're more likely to receive a higher credit limit. That's why it's important to pay off debts, pay hourly bills, and always keep your balance under approved limits. Can you exceed your credit card limit? If the limit is exceeded, penalties may apply. It's also important to remember that exceeding the limit can affect your credit score. If you need a higher credit limit, you can request an increase in the credit limit. Note: When using a card, we continuously borrow against the credit limit and pack it. Therefore, on any day, the available credits will change depending on your current outstanding balance. How do I request an increase in my credit limit? If you're looking for an increase or decrease in your credit limit, you can request it online if you're the primary account owner. Simply: Select a credit card account signed in to BMO Online Banking Select Credit.Change and if you want to chat according to the prompt, you can give us a ring at 1-800-263-2263. In either case, you may be asked to provide details about your income, assets, and/or credit obligations at your request. Why wasn't you approved to increase your credit limit? If your credit score is high, you're more likely to be approved for a higher credit limit. If your credit score is low, you might get credit card approval, but it's a little more risky, so start with a lower credit limit. Just get your credit card approved and it will help you strengthen your credit history as long as you use it with responsibility. Creditors will make sure you are approved, make regular payments and be able to repay what you owe. Over time, this will help improve your credit score and allow you to request an increase in your credit limit in the future. I'm starting to build a credit history. Which card is right for me? You can apply for a student credit card, a low-cost credit card, or a card that offers important benefits, such as account cashback, AIR MILES benefits, and other benefits. Save time and easily see what's available with the credit card comparison tool. Applying for a card and using it regularly can help you create a credit history. Always remember that it is important to use your card with responsibility: pay your credit card bill for hours Pay your credit card bill in full Request a free credit report that pays your credit card bill well within your credit card limit and see how to make a call 1-800-363-9992 if you are using a BMO debit card.
