

She Talks to the Animals: Lynn McKenzie, Animal Intuitive

by Karen Reider (as featured in Four Corners Magazine in November 2002)

If you're reading this article, chances are you love animals. If you love them, odds are you have one or two. And if you have them, you've been faced with problems that traditional medicine has not resolved. And what about those bewildering issues, like your cat peeing everywhere but in the litter box? Some of us have lost a beloved pet and were left with the added pain of wondering what became of them. Or, perhaps you've gotten a dog or cat from the Humane Society and behavior problems have left you wondering just what happened to them to create their fear or hostility.

How many times have you said, "If only they could talk"? Well, they do. It's simply a matter of listening and understanding what they are trying to let us know.

Animal lovers are always talking to their pets and certainly many of us have the distinct feeling that our pets understand what we say. The people who treat their dogs like "it's just a dog," and believe that animals don't have feelings, might argue this. But then, they may not be the ones reading this article. Nor are they likely to seek out the help of animal intuitive, Lynn McKenzie.

A recent interview with McKenzie shed light on how, for people who love their furry family members, she can be a lifesaver.

McKenzie, originally from Canada, has spent many years in several alternative health fields. From kinesiology to dowsing, she has adapted a style of healing she refers to as "energy acupuncture."

Working initially with people, McKenzie found her true calling with animals when she adopted a young Lab puppy over nine years ago.

McKenzie and Jiggs were deeply bonded from the start. Just two weeks after adopting him, Jiggs got horribly sick. Visit after visit to a vet, drug after drug; nothing seemed to help. $1,100 later, McKenzie began looking for alternative methods to treat him. At that time, there wasn't a lot of alternative care available. She started by asking her chiropractor to do an adjustment on the dog. Reluctant at first, he finally agreed and McKenzie saw improvement. Finding a holistic veterinarian encouraged her further. At one point, it occurred to her to try the body alignment process she had been using on her clients. Jiggs responded instantly and his health returned. McKenzie believes Jiggs came into her life to guide her to work with animals. Evidently Jiggs agrees, as he began barking loudly and wagging his tail when she told me this story. Shortly after, McKenzie took a course in animal communication, where the transfer of her skills was solidified.

While attending the workshop, she had a powerful connection with the spirit of Lucero, an Andalusian Stallion, who, at that time, was still in the physical realm. McKenzie described Lucero as "a very wise being likened to an Ascended Master of the equine world." Lucero has guided McKenzie to use her healing talents and psychic abilities for the good of both the animal kingdom and humankind.

McKenzie combines her life-long love for, and impressive connection to, animals with her passion and gifts for healing and counseling, creating outstanding results as an Animal Intuitive. A session with McKenzie will awaken you to the wonders and limitless possibilities available to you and your animal companion. Sessions can be fun and informative and provide healing and better understanding of your animal on physical, behavioral, emotional and spiritual levels. Lynn currently has clients in Canada, the U.S. and abroad.

Interestingly, she doesn't need to be with the animal to do a reading. In fact she prefers not to be. In their home, she finds there are often many distractions and it can be harder to read the animal. She likes having a photo of the animal she can look at as she meditates in her own home, connecting with the pet without any distractions. McKenzie said she is able to solve a problem without even knowing specifically what the problem is. Speaking to the soul of the animal allows her to get right to the source and get very clear and concise information.

McKenzie has worked on many different kinds of animals and on the pets of fellow Animal Intuits as well. She tells me that we're often just too close to our own animal companions to know the truth.

McKenzie is developing an online and Tele-class training in Animal Energy Healing and Animal Communication that she plans to have ready early this year. She also offers mentoring for newer Animal Communicators/Healers. And, she continues to work with people as well because, "it is very important at this time."

McKenzie has appeared on TV, radio and was interviewed by the Toronto Star, a very conservative paper in Canada. She believes that this is one of the many signs of our changing times and people's receptiveness to this kind of work. Newspapers in five other cities throughout Canada picked up the article and ran it. McKenzie was getting calls from all over!

She moved to Sedona five years ago, when spirit demanded she do so. McKenzie was guided here for vacation and then given sign after sign, pushing her, until she returned. She loves Sedona and is grateful for how well she has been received here.

She is available for, and encourages, speaking engagements in an effort to 'spread the word to as many people as possible and help deepen our connection with the animal kingdom'. McKenzie believes that "the animals are trying to show us the oneness of all." She will also travel to other areas for workshops if enough people are interested.

McKenzie is also a certified spiritual psychotherapist and subtle energy worker, and has studied many healing modalities including: animal aromatherapy, body alignment technique, crystal therapy, kinesiology, channeling, animal nutrition, color therapy, essential oils, flower essences and dowsing.

Through the extensive use of these modalities, and continued personal growth and clearing, McKenzie continues to develop and hone her psychic abilities.
