Giving full credit to whom credit is due. I learned this stitch pattern from a Japanese or Chinese blog that showed photo tutorial of the stitch, however I cannot read and understand the characters (probably Nihongo or Mandarin or Cantonese). My stitch pattern is how I understood the photo tutorial. Although it was incomplete, I had to figure out the rest to come up with this scarf. Even so, giving full credit to the blogger.

Photo Tutorial

CH3, SS to form a ring, make a half-heart.

CH10, SS in 3rd CH from hook, do a full heart into ring

You alternate half-heart and full heart, you end with full heart and create another full heart. Your work would look like this after doing row 1, regardless of the length.

Go back and complete the hearts, as you go, you create 3CH spaces (2) and a 3CH-arch (center)

From row 3, you CH11, and SS on top of 1st TR, CH 10 and SS in 3rd CH to form a ring, start a half heart, SS in 3CH-arch, go back to the ring and complete half-heart, CH7, SS on top of 1st TR of next heart, CH10 and repeat stitch patter. You put full heart in the last 3CH-arch.

This is how it will look after repeating the stitch pattern.
