The 2019 League of Legends World Championship starts in Berlin, Germany, on October 2nd. Here's everything you need about the League's biggest, most prestigious competitive event. What is the World Championships? The League of Legends World Championship (also known as Worlds) is a one-year international tournament that brings together the best teams from each league in a battle to lift the Summoner Cup and win the World Champion title. The event is moved between host regions each year; This year, the teams will tour three European countries. When does Worlds happen? The worlds begin with the Play-In Stage on October 2 and end with the finals on November 10. Individual stage dates are listed below. Which teams are competing? The seeds of a region are based on past international performance. Continuously strong regions send some or all of their seeds directly to the Group Stage, while other regions get fewer seeds and/or start in the Play-In Phase. 1st Seed: SK Telecom T1 2 Seed: GRIFFIN Seed: DAMWON Game 1 Seed: G2 Esports 2 Seed: Fnatic 3 Seed: Splyce 1 Seed: Team Liquid 2 Seed: Cloud9 3 Seed: Clutch Game 1 Seed: GAM Esports 2 Seed: Lowkey Esports What has changed for 2019? China (LPL) will have three group stages in international tournaments such as the 2018 Mid-Season Invitational and the 2018 World Championships based on their competitive performances over the past two years. Vietnam (VCS) will receive two seeds this year. Their first seed was won last year as a result of their emerge as an independent region. Their second seed was awarded as a result of their place in the Mid-Season Invitational. The first seeds will start in the Group Stage and the second seeds will start in the Play-In. Also, this year, teams will be allowed to have up to 7 players on their Active Rosters. This change was made due to the evolution of the sport and the increasing number of substitutes. What is the format? Worlds consists of three stages: Play-In Stage, Group Stage and Knockout Stage (Quarterfinals, Semi-Finals and Finals). Play-In Stage: 10/2-10/5; 10/7-10/8 Berlin (LEC Studio) 12 teams are divided into four groups. Each group plays a Double Round-Robin (each team plays all the others twice), the best in the 1st series. The two highest-grade teams from each group go to the Play-In Knockouts, where the teams that come first in each group are mapped to the second teams from the other group. These matches will determine the 4 Play-In teams to move into the Group Stage. Group Stage: 10/12-10/15; October 17-20 Berlin (Verti Music Hall) 16 teams - 12 directly qualified for the Group Stage, and 4 Play-In Stage - are taken to four groups. Each group plays a Double Round-Robin, the best in the 1st series. The two top-ranked teams from each group will move on to the knockout stage, the final stage of the tournament. Interested in how groups are selected for Play-In and Group Stages? Tune Draw Show for 4:00pm CEST Knockout Stage on September 23: 10/26-10/27; 11/2-11/3; 11/10 Madrid, Spain (Palacio Vistalegre) & Paris, France (AccorHotels Arena) 8 teams are progressing to the Qualifying Stage covering the Quarter-Finals, Semi-Finals and Finals. For this stage, the tournament switches to a single qualifying match with all matches played in the best-of-5 format. Matchups are decided by a draw on a stage before the game starts every day. The top team will be the 2019 World Champion. How am I going to watch it? You can catch every game and broadcast program on watch.lolesports.com! The League of Legends World Championship is an annual event organised by Riot Games.
