

INTERNSHIP PROGRAMS

Midwest Farmers Cooperative offers summer internship programs for college students in any AG related degree. Opportunities are available for AG students to acquire on the job training with a mentor in various areas. Such as; agronomy, grain, energy, feed, operations, and administration.

Students will gain a better understanding, knowledge and experience of Cooperatives as a business and MFC's operations, products and services. In turn, the Cooperative gains valuable hands-on experience working with students that could be potential employees that would be ideal candidates for our career path program.

Just as important, at the end of the internship, students will develop a network for themselves with growers, MFC agronomy vendors and with the company as a future career.

If you are interested in a college internship that could develop into a future career, take the next step and make application under future career opportunities located under the career link.
