

Fifteen years ago, sorting out the Russian language, and looking incredibly young... This was us! In Ukraine with one child and not one grey hair. Who are these people?

We had no idea what we were getting ourselves into; yet we kept going. There have been so many miraculous events through the years. I might have to write a book about it someday. But the story of our lives continues. What will the next chapter be about?

This summer that little girl in my arms (photo above) will turn eighteen. Can you believe it? With that reality in mind, we feel the time is soon upon us to make a transition. Our ministry of mobilizing missionaries to the unreached will continue. However, the place we call home will be changing. We have decided to relocate our family to the Midwest United States next summer 2019.

Please pray:

- We will be stepping into the unfamiliar world of home ownership. Pray we can find a place that suits us.
- Pray about the transition of our ministry from America. Many details need to be sorted out with our mission.
- Continue to pray for a buyer for our old van. We are hoping that this will be more likely with spring coming, though we are still in the midst of melting snow.
- There are several specific ministry events in the next couple of weeks. March 23-24 MMK Missions Conference. March 27-28 Storyline training. And in April, a course about missions in the city.
