A Call To Worship Darlene Scheffer – Liturgist
One: In every season, God calls us back—back to what grounds us, back to one another, back to grace.
All: We come to find our place and find our people.
One: We were never meant to journey through life alone. We need people who know our stories, share our questions, celebrate our joys, and carry our burdens.
All: We come to build relationships that are honest, courageous, and real.
One: A phone call can encourage us. A message can remind us that someone cares. But there is something sacred about showing up in worship— being present, seeing one another, and sharing life together.
All: Here, we make room for one another.
One: Here we can bring our questions and our doubts, our faith and our uncertainty, our laughter and our tears, and discover that God meets us in one another.
All: Together, we encounter grace. Together, we discover belonging. Together, our faith grows stronger.
One: So whether you have been here every Sunday, have been away for a season, or are wondering if there is a place for you—
All: Come home. Find your people. Grow together.
One: Let us show up. Let us share honestly. Let us connect vulnerably. Let us journey together.
All: For everyone is welcome, everyone has a place, and no one walks alone. Let us worship God—together.
