

Dr. Norman Goldberg

Dr. Norman Goldberg was born and raised in New York City, New York and Jersey City. He attended Rutgers College in New Brunswick, NJ and received his medical degree from New Jersey Medical School, a division of the University Of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. He moved to Miami in 1976 to begin his Pediatric Residency Program. After two years, Dr. Goldberg relocated to Houston, Texas where he completed his Pediatric Residency and a year of Allergy/Immunology training at Texas

Children's Hospital.

Dr. Goldberg joined Kings Bay Pediatrics in 1980 and also taught at the Pediatric Residency Program at Jackson Memorial Hospital for over three years. He has been active in hospital affairs since joining the group, having served as Chief of Pediatrics at both South Miami and Baptist Children's Hospitals. He continues to be active at BCH where he sits on both Pediatric Department Advisory Committee and the Baptist Children's Hospital Executive Committee. He is Board Certified in Pediatrics and a member of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Dr. Goldberg is married and is the father of three grown children, D.J., Drew, and Gayle. When not working, he enjoys travel, hiking, reading and racquetball.

