

From everyone at Solid Grounds we would like to wish you a HAPPY NEW YEAR!

JANUARY 2019

5—Duke City Swampcoolers

This local bluegrass band originally formed from an eclectic mix of professional people including among others, a doctor, a pharmacist, a contractor/professor, and a fellow who does something nuclear.

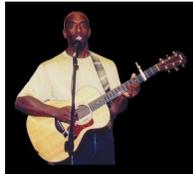

Musical influences range from swing to blues to folk to hard driving old time bluegrass.

12—Oscar Butler

Watching the ease at which Oscar's hands work complex finger pickings conjunct with rhythmic thumping all while vocally giving what equates to a sonic massage lulls his listeners into thinking this is an easy feat.

Oscar has spent over forty years perfecting his craft. He has been called by the Weekly Alibi newspaper, "One of the best voices in Albuquerque." www.oscarbutlermusic.com

19—Watermelon Mountain Jug Band

True to the original 1920's jug bands of the South, their music comes alive with washboard, jug, kazoo, washtub bass, spoons, band, ragtime, country and bluegrass music with some rock 'n roll or a Spanish ranchera for spice.

26—Last Call Jazz

This local jazz quartet plays across the genre from bebop to swing to music of today, as well as blues, R&B and original songs.

2—Michael Roth

Roth has been called "a cool dark troubadour" and "an amazing writer" by fans and industry professionals, evoking a mix of Leonard Cohen, Gordon Lightfoot, Johnny Cash, Paul Simon and others with lyrics known for their intriguing imagery and "deep, profound truth." He is featured in the Great American Song Hall of Fame, and is known for his award-winning, original acoustic songs with "the kind of lyrics that make Nashville writers salivate." NSAI named him "One to Watch."

9—Merlettes

Merlettes are all about the twang. And the girls: five sassy, up-to-date honky-tonk ladies with a love for classic C&W. Their air-tight, high lonesome harmonies captivate the ear and the heart as they celebrate the strength of our connections and the gritty twang of the human spirit.

16—Buffalo Bill & Dr. Joe

Buffalo Bill is songster, raconteur, fiddler, historian, and winner of the Western Music

Association (WMA) Yodeler of 2011.

He performs historical, cowboy and original songs about The Wild West, and the Oregon Trail.
