Core Truths

"The same divine energy that raised Jesus from the dead, actively operates in every believer!"

"Anxious thoughts - Anxiety is often symptom, of misplaced trust - David's asking God to expose his anxiety, to strengthen his trust"

"If you aren't hungry for God, you're full of yourself." — Mark Batterson

"As your understanding of divine love becomes greater, your wonder of God naturally grows."

Application

Step out of the Comfort Zone

- Action: Say "yes" to one uncomfortable spiritual prompting this week.
- Details: Start a conversation with a lonely neighbor or offer to pray for a coworker etc.
- Goal: Expand their personal comfort zone to make room for God's bigger plan for you ... and them.

Questions for the Week

- Are you just punching a spiritual time-card? Hanging out in personal comfort zones breeds an predictable, stagnant faith. Are you settling for simply logging in for services and prayers out of habit, or do you crave a genuine hunger to be filled with the wonder of who God is?
- What divine energy are you relying on? Paul dictated letters of absolute confidence while physically chained 24/7 to a Roman soldier under house arrest. Do your current circumstances dictate what you think God can do, or do you believe that His resurrection power is actively operating inside you?
- Are you brave enough to drop to your knees and invite a deliberate search? David bypassed prayers for personal comfort and specifically asked God to expose his hidden, anxious thoughts and offensive behaviors. Are your prayers focused entirely on what God can do for you, or are you ready to relinquish control so He can lead you on an everlasting path through you?
