

3/18 - Musical Tasks

Set a timer, and each time it goes off, everyone swaps tasks with the person to their right (or with the room to the right, in case you do chore zones) and picks up where they left off.

Pro tip: Add music, just like musical chairs. When the music stops, switch!

3/25- Mystery Chore Game

For this game write cleaning tasks on a large wooden stick. This works best if you are specific (ie wiping down the office furniture, or sweeping the living room, washing windows, doing the dishes, etc). Then put all the sticks in the jar and let the kids pick their “Mystery Chore” to do.

On the back of each chore stick, write a small reward (ie 15 minutes of computer time, scoop of ice cream, mom plays one game with you) that the kids can cash in during the week for each chore they successfully complete.

Another version of this I heard one mom share in a moms group once, is to put quarters under items left on the ground. Then the kids have to clean up and they can gather the quarters while they clean for a trip to the Party City Store, or Dollar Store to spend after room is finished.
