sermon synopsis

We're starting a brand new series called "Clean" which wants to explore how we should be pursuing holiness as Christians. Jesus told his disciples that it was not an external action that made them unclean, but rather the internal motive or desire of the heart. We want to explore that topic.

- 01 (From Last Week) - Greg Hubbard spoke of "obstacles" in seeing Jesus. Is there anything in your life currently that God has asked you to change that you've not really acted on and which could be preventing you from knowing God more intimately?
- 02 (This Week) What practices do you observe in your spiritual walk where it has become more ritual than conviction in doing it? Praying over meals? Attending church? What could you do to help get back to the heart of the practice to help break out of just performing it over and over?
- 03 Discuss a time in your life where you allowed something otherwise considered good by God to become a control for you. Maybe food or alcohol became addictive? Or you allowed relaxation to morph into laziness and disorder? What were the heart issues underneath that? (This is a tough one... but groups are a great place to discuss topics
