Going Global With The Gospel...

Charlie will be 90 in June and is still struggling with his ability read and work at the computer. Given his age and Macular Degeneration this will likely continue to decline. Please keep this as a matter of prayer. With that, once again it is my honor to fill in for him this month.

I want to thank those that took part in the ministry last year through your support. You are truly making a difference for the Kingdom. Numbers are still coming in, but with just one of the ministries that NAM helps support in Oklahoma over 500 adults and children made salvation decisions last year. With work that spreads from Alaska to Florida and California to Canada that number is multiplied many times. Rejoice knowing you had a part in each of those souls coming to Christ.

Going Global With The Gospel is the title of a beautiful and powerful song written by my friend and Missionary to Mexico, Laurie Bradley. It speaks of the need and responsibility God gave each of us to send the gospel to the four corners of the world. And to that we all say a hardy "Amen". At the same time, it's hard for many to think of the United States as a mission field. If you could visit many of the Native American reservations, you would feel like you've gone to a third world country. Poverty and hopelessness fuel the spread of gangs, drugs, and alcohol abuse like a pandemic disease. A disease that destroys the body and condemns the soul.

There is a cure. It takes the few willing to invest their lives to go preach the gospel, and many others to invest their dollars to send them. You only need to read the paper or watch the news to know the time is short, but sadly the need continues to be greater than the funds coming in.

I hope that each of you can personalize in your heart the exceeding depth of need and pray for faithful servants to join the effort. As you can see, the rewards are eternal.

May God continue to bless in this new year,

Rick Jordan for Charlie Yates
