

TIPS FOR SUCCESS

Hints for parents to help their campers have a great week at camp!

The benefits of a week at camp are numerous. Campers are given an opportunity to develop independence, decision making skills, social awareness skills, self confidence and esteem, all within an extremely safe environment. There are several things you can do to make this week a successful one for your child.

TALKING IT UP!

- ✓ Talk about why you want your child to go to camp. If you were a camper, at Kinasao or another camp, talk about your camp experiences.
- ✓ Talk about how your camper will respond to camp staff. Campers are expected to respect staff and to follow instructions. Remind your camper that staff are fun, caring people, there to help them have a great week, but staff also need to enforce the rules of the camp.
- ✓ Talk about the exciting activities to try at camp. Encourage your camper to keep an open mind and to be ready to try new games, crafts, and to make new friends.

WHAT IF I HAVE TROUBLE?

Many campers are nervous about going to camp, which is completely normal. However, there are many ways to help campers to calm their nerves so that they can enjoy a great week of camp!

- ✓ Encourage your child to express exactly what it is that scares them (ie: missing mom or dad). Voicing these concerns will help you to prepare your camper, and to communicate with camp staff any special concerns your child may have. Assure your camper that camp staff will be with them to encourage them throughout the week.
- ✓ Make a plan with your camper to address issues they may face at camp. For example, if someone is being unkind, campers should tell a staff member.

HOMESICKNESS

- ✓ Homesickness is very common. Homesickness is most often experienced by first time campers; by campers worried about something specific at home (ex. parent's illness or a special family event); if campers speak with or see parents/guardians; or when campers become tired and/or grumpy.
- ✓ Staff are trained to help campers deal with feelings of homesickness. In almost all cases, staff are able to work with the individual camper and the homesickness is turned into a victory for the child, an obstacle they learn to manage and overcome. If a camper is extremely homesick and/or not responding to assistance, parents/guardians will be contacted by camp staff. Our goal is to help all of our campers make it through the week successfully.

PHONE USE

- ✓ Campers will not be allowed to phone home, except with the permission of the Executive or Program Director of the camp. Phoning home seems like a solution to homesickness, however in our experience, it almost always makes the homesickness worse. If a phone call is needed, staff will contact parents/guardians. If you would like to inquire about your camper, please call the camp office. Staff will be happy to report back to you. Speaking with people from home can often bring on homesickness, even if it was not an issue before.

BUT WHAT IF I MISS HOME...

- ✓ Do NOT promise your camper that they can phone to be picked up anytime they want. Instead, encourage your camper to see this week as a challenge, and remind them that you will be very proud of them for making it through the week.
- ✓ DO encourage your camper to talk with their counselor or other staff if they are feeling sad or having a problem. Encourage them to listen to staff and to try their best to follow instructions. Staff are not being mean by suggesting ways the camper can overcome homesickness. Feeling homesick is not wrong, but if campers give in to those feelings, they miss out on the greatness of camp life.

WHEN YOU ARRIVE AT KINASAO

Upon arrival, you will be directed to register your camper, and at that time you will be introduced to the staff who will be leading your camper's group for the week. Please take time to look around the camp, familiarize yourself with the surroundings and ask any questions you may have. We hope you will feel extremely comfortable with our camp before you leave.

AND WHEN YOUR CHILD RETURNS HOME...

Expect lots of stories and excitement! Some campers will even go through a bit of a "down time" after all the activity at camp. This is common, but it will pass! You can begin talking about the fun that awaits them next year!
