Doldrums

Ever been there? If you are sailing and the only power source you have is the wind, this can be trouble. Your stuck, sitting, or moving with the current if there is one or just “stagnant” right where you’re at. Well, would like to say that I can feel the wind and it’s caught up in the sail moving us along but at the moment the wind has taken a hike!

Although I may be stagnant it has not slowed down the rest of you for there’s lot’s happening. Currently there is a small team with Marcel and they are focused on ministering to the elderly. This is an area that has been tugging on his heart for some time. These last couple years the door has opened to reach out and minister to many right where they are at. Many of us have worked with the elderly and it’s tough enough here but imagine in Haiti where all of the conveniences we are accustomed to are not there. Something about discipleship and encouragement come to mind not to mention hospitality. Many have contributed and the hands are now in place to follow through and touch some lives. Please pray for the team as they have this opportunity to reach out. Giving thanks for His provision.
