A Message from our Pastors . . .

The police department in Casper, Wyoming, has an Animal protection unit that offers dog obedience classes to the public. The head of the program said, “The animal’s quality of life increases when the relationship between the animal and owner is strengthened through the obedience training”

If dogs can enjoy a better quality of life by learning to obey, how much more should we learn to obey our Lord in all things—large and small. Obedience may be more difficult for some people than others, but even the most stubborn learners become serious about obeying when they realize that following God is the best and only way to live—for now and for eternity.

Is there an area of your life in need of discipline and obedience? When you bring that area under control of the Holy Spirit, your quality of life will increase!

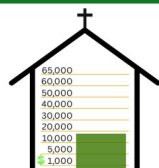

Blessings,
Pastors Jerry & Judy
