

MOSES: A Leader needs other leaders
Exodus 18:13-24

This week's text focused on Moses being overwhelmed and trying to do too much.

Can you relate to that feeling?

Do you presently feel overwhelmed? If so, why?

Which do you feel more typically: (i) too busy or (ii) not busy enough?

One reason that Moses was overwhelmed and moving towards burnout is because he thought that he had to do it all.

Have you ever known someone who tried to do everything?

Is your schedule so hectic that you are unable to do things well because you are trying to do so many things?

Is there one thing you wish you could eliminate from your schedule?

Some of the suggested reasons that people try to do it all is because (i) they are people pleasers; (ii) they cannot say "no;" (iii) they get their identity from what they do; and/or (iv) they are paranoid about missing out.

Do you relate to any of those challenges?

Why do some people have a hard time saying no?

Have you ever seen somebody get their identity from what they do? Have you ever seen this happen in ministry?

Another reason Moses was overwhelmed is because he failed to prioritize.

What is the difference between the things that you "could do" and the things that you "should do?"

Are there any good things that you should say "no" to so that you can say "yes" to the most important things?
