1 Corinthians 10:23—11:1, "All for God's Glory," May 31, 2026, Kevin Stuhlmann

Main Point: Paul gives two biblical principles to govern all of life, including disputable matters: First, Live for the good of others. And second, Live for the glory of God.*

1. Read 1 Corinthians 10:23—11:1. What themes from the previous three chapters are repeated or elaborated on here?

2. Verse 23 mentions building others up, which is a repeated topic in the New Testament. What are practical ways we can seek to build up fellow Christians?

3. In verse 25 Paul affirms that idol-meat in the abstract is indifferent. What additional reasons does he give for this in verses 26 and 30? How can we practically incorporate these truths into our own lives?

4. How does Paul apply living for the good of others (vv. 23-24) to the situation in verses 27-29a?

5. In your own words, describe what it means to "do all to the glory of God" (v. 31).

6. Think about one or two everyday activities. Practically speaking, what would it look like for you to do them to God's glory?

7. How do verses 32-33 relate to verse 31?

8. What lessons can we learn from Paul's command in 11:1, "Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ"?

9. What other comments, questions, or personal applications do you have from this passage?
