A More Excellent Way (Part 2)

Last week we introduced Rick Atchley's sermon on 1 Corinthians 13 and his memorable equation: Excellence minus love equals nothing. This week we consider what that love actually looks like. Rick observed that most people are capable of a certain kind of love. We naturally love those who love us, show kindness to those who are kind to us, and enjoy relationships with people who make life easier. Jesus acknowledged that reality, but He also calls His followers to something greater. The love described in 1 Corinthians 13 is not a transaction—it is a commitment. It does not say, "I will love you if." Rather, it says, "I will love you even if."

That kind of love is patient when patience is difficult. It is kind when kindness is not returned. It refuses to keep score, hold grudges, or write people off. It continues to hope, persevere, and seek the good of others even when doing so requires sacrifice. Perhaps that is why Jesus commands us to love our enemies, pray for those who mistreat us, and bless those who curse us. Such love does not come naturally. It reflects the very character of God. As Rick reminded us, Christian love is not merely an investment made in hopes of receiving something in return. It is a commitment rooted in the love that God has first shown us through Christ. The more excellent way is not simply doing more. It is loving more—especially when it costs us something.
