50 Words

(Psalm 23)

Have ever there been so few words that have spilled more ink, been memorized by so many people in nearly every language on earth or comforted as many as those fifty words of Psalm 23. These words escaped their setting and context millennia ago. They have landed in the hearts and ears of billions of people in billions of personal, private and unspeakable settings and contexts.

Psalm 23 carries power on its own. Like the other Psalms, it is most powerful when read without comment. When read during a crisis, or at a funeral, or wedding, or other shared event – the context needs no explanation. The Psalm speaks to all those who are present in the way that it needs to be heard at that time.

The line “though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death” has been sung by U2, Coolio (Gansta Paradise), Kanye West (Jesus Walks), and Weird Al Yankovich (Amhish Paradise). Psalm 23 was recited by George Bush on September 11, 2001, and by Barak Obama after the mining accident in West Viginia on April 25, 2010. The words of the Psalm have been used to reflect context and to create a new one. Such is the power of poetry.

Psalm 23 is recited by believers and unbelievers. It is one of those passages in the Bible that can be seen as a gateway. A door that those struggling with life or faith can gently push open and walk through at the beginning of their journey of faith. It is also, when better understood, a powerful affirmation of acknowledging God as the Good King who is our provider, protector, and guide.

There is embedded in this Psalm an assumption of following the Good Sheperd. There is no leading without following. There is no path of righteousness for those who refuse to submit to the leading of the Shepherd King. The imagery of Jesus as the Good Shepherd in John is a reminder of Psalm 23. The prophecies concerning the “stupid shepherds” (Jeremiah 10:21) contrasting with the “shepherds who will care for God’s people” (Jeremiah 23:4) are indications that we all need to be led. Everyone needs the generations ahead of them to teach them.

The writer of Hebrews says, “Remember your leaders, those who spoke to you the word of God; consider the outcome of their life, and imitate their faith.” (Hebrews 13:7). Good disciples will make good teachers. Good followers turn into good leaders.

“The Lord is my Shepherd!” We imitate our shepherds. We become like those whom we choose to follow. Psalm 23 is a door. It is a source of comfort in difficult times. It is accessible. It is also one of the most demanding of the Psalms. Growing into it is a worthy goal for all of us.

Communion—We celebrate the resurrection of our Lord every Sunday ("first day of the week") through a time of communion known as the Lord's Supper. The "unleavened bread" represents His body and the "fruit of the vine" (cup of grape juice) represents His blood shed on the cross. As our guest, you are welcome to participate, though you are not required to do so.

Giving— We are challenged to be good stewards of God's blessings by supporting the various ministries of the church through a weekly collection that is taken during our worship time. You are welcome to give, but please do not feel as though you must.
