The Dead Are Raised

(Luke 7:11-23)

There are not very many examples of the dead being raised in the Bible. In the Old Testament there is Elijah and the widow of Zarapheth's son, Elisha and the Shunammite Woman's son, and the man that was thrown into Elisha's tomb and touched his bones. In the New Testament Jesus raised Jairus' son, the son of a widow in Nain, and Lazarus. Paul raised Eutychus, Peter raised Dorcas. There were the saints raised when Jesus died and of course, in a category of its own the resurrection of Jesus.

Elijah and Elisha were prophets during dark times in Israel. In Elijah's day, there was a famine in the land, and it was a gentile woman's son who was raised. God's life-giving breath extends beyond what we think it could or should.

Later, the story of the valley of dry bones in Ezekiel lets us know that things did not get better in Israel and Judah. They were dead beyond help. The only thing that could bring them back was the creative breath of God. Resurrection is a reversal of the judgment and exile that God's people were experiencing.

Daniel 12:2 says, "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Isaiah 25 tells us of a great feast prepared for all nations. Resurrection is the promise of God's ultimate victory. Paul also borrows from Hosea 13:14 when he tells the Corinthians not to lose their hope of resurrection,
Shall I ransom them from the power of Sheol?
Shall I redeem them from Death?
O Death, where are your plagues?
O Sheol, where is your destruction?
Compassion is hid from my eyes."

When Jesus arrives on this earth and begins his ministry of teaching and miraculous signs, raising the dead would have called all of this to mind. He was demonstrating that the restoration of God's people had begun. He was showing the disciples and us that the kingdom of God was appearing.

We know this because of the reaction of John and his disciples. In Luke, just after Jesus raised the widow's son at Nain, John's disciples reported back to him what they had seen and heard, "the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, the poor have good news preached to them".

The raising of the widow's son at Nain is not only about giving a son back to his mother. What is more important is that it helps confirm to us who Jesus is. It lets us know that the one who gives life has brought his kingdom to earth.
