The Need

Japanese Christians represent less than 1 percent of the population, and there is a shortage of trained clergy. Church leaders need solid theological and pastoral training.

They also need commitment to the leading of the Holy Spirit and a passion for training lay people.

Wayne Jansen's Ministry

Wayne provides theological and practical training for church leaders. Students are challenged to deal with all sorts of issues that could manifest themselves in ministry while serving in a church. One course he teaches gives students the opportunity to intern as chaplains at a nearby hospital. They learn about caring for others and about how to get in touch with themselves.

Wayne Jansen works in partnership with the United Church of Christ in Japan (UCCJ).

Please Pray:

- That members of the UCCJ will cooperate to bring the gospel to Japan.
- That Wayne and Miho will be able to listen to what students are asking in modern Japan.
- For more people to be called into Christian ministry: "The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few."
- For the thousands of survivors of the 2011 earthquake, many of whom are still living in temporary housing. Many others are indefinitely unable to return to their homes due to the nuclear power plant meltdown that permanently made much of Fukushima uninhabitable.
