

Playing the GCC podcasts on Android

By default, when you try to play the GCC podcasts on the web page, Android tries to install Apple Music. The problem is that Apple Music doesn't play the podcast when installed, nor does it let you subscribe to the podcast. The following sequence of screenshots shows what most people are probably running into --- 1-4) they go to the podcast page, 5) it asks to install Apple Music, 6) but then when Apple Music opens there's no GCC podcast nor does it show up with a search.

The solution is to install a dedicated podcast player. There are a number of free ones available --- the one I use is pretty popular, and is called CastBox. Once CastBox is installed you can simply search for the Grace Crossing podcast and subscribe to it. After that, you can listen to the GCC podcasts by opening CastBox, going to your Subscriptions (under the top left menu), and selecting the entry for GCC. The following screenshots illustrate the steps: 1) installing CastBox, 2) the CastBox starting page, 3) searching for Grace Crossing in CastBox, 4) subscribing to the Grace Crossing Church Podcast, 5) looking at the list of subscribed podcasts in CastBox, and ultimately 6) playing the podcast.
