Burnt Church Cemetery

Near this site in 1830 the Brian Neck Presbyterian Church was established, being the oldest organized congregation in Bryan County.

The church served the numerous planter families of lower Bryan, which had become one of the most productive agricultural sections of the South Atlantic coast. The Church burial ground was adjacent to the wood frame sanctuary. On these grounds are interred members of some of Bryan County's most prominent early families, including those of Clay, McAllister and Maxwell. The original church accidentally burned in 1882 and a new edifice was built in 1885 several miles east, near Keller. Waymarking.com

BOOK OF ORDER

Like Elders, Deacons are men and women elected by the congregation. You must be a member of the congregation, and a person of spiritual character and sound judgement in order to serve. The ministry of a deacon is one of compassion, witness, and service, reflecting the love of Jesus Christ. Deacons are called to care for the physical and spiritual needs of the congregation and the wider community. When a congregation does not have an active board of Deacons (like RHPC currently) Session assumes oversight of these ministries.
