Rejoice With Those Who Rejoice

I made the mistake of tuning in to the Academy Awards ceremony this past Sunday evening. I actually don't enjoy such pomp and circumstance, but it was on and I found myself intrigued by much more than the films being celebrated. It was most interesting to watch the faces of those who were nominated for awards and those, who after being nominated, did not win the award. In most cases, there were smiles and gracious applause. Some responded rather negatively. One threw a fit when he didn't receive the award he obviously thought belonged to him. My thoughts went back to playground games, and the little fits that children will throw when they don't win.

Well, things just don't always go our way, do they? Playground games turn into those serious "games" of life where much more is at stake than a bag of marbles or the title "king of the hill." But I want us to think about our reaction to those around us when they "win," when they celebrate victories in their lives. It's not always easy to respond positively when brothers and sisters have something to celebrate.

That ever-present "me" creeps into our thoughts and we wonder why we aren't celebrating our own victories. What a blessing it is as the family of God to be able to learn to "rejoice with those who rejoice!" (Rom. 12:15). When their victories become our victories, then all of us have won – simply because we belong to one-another! Whether the victories are financial, occupational, medical or spiritual, we need to learn to be tuned in to those things that bring joy to the lives of our brothers and sisters! When we do that, we truly are all "winners!"
