SYMPATHY

We extend our deepest sympathy to Angie Vaughan and family in the death of her sister-in-law,
Grace Sowell.

THANK YOU

To: Six Good Samaritans

You came to help but you did the complete job (all without any moving equipment), as the movers did not show. You worked so hard moving me and did a wonderful job. Thank you does not express what I feel in my heart. To each of you, Murray & Sylvia Cox, Roy & Tamie Foley, Cliff Goble and Ron Cofer, I send my deepest gratitude for your love and caring. I pray God's richest blessings upon you.

With all my love,
Maxine Booker

Thank you to the Adult Bible Study Senior Adult 2 Class for the purchase of a new BBQ grill for the church.

Just show up!

As we enter November, we quickly realize that the holidays are upon us. It seems like we just started the Fall season and here we are with Thanksgiving right around the corner. When I think about Thanksgiving, I automatically reflect on the food, of course. I want to encourage you to make your thanksgiving more than a meal. Let's take some time to focus on a full heart, not just a full stomach.

Grab your Bible and read Luke 17:11-19. This is the story where Jesus miraculously heals ten lepers and only one returns to express gratitude to his Healer. Even while most of the men did not come back to Jesus with a thankful heart, that was His expectation. When the one cleansed leper returned to Jesus, the Lord said to him, "Were not ten cleansed? Where are the nine? (v.17). This passage reveals that it is the Lord's expectation that we give Him thanks. This story also shows us something important about us. We can often neglect the gift-giver for the sake of the gift.

Let's not be too hard on the nine men who Jesus healed that didn't return. They had a terminal illness that would have kept them from their families and made them societal outcasts. In all honesty, I might be so overjoyed at the gift of healing that I'd forget to express gratitude to the one who granted the gift to me. Here's the first lesson...We must be intentional about thanksgiving (the act and the holiday). We can get so focused on food and football that we forget about the One who fills our table and our hearts. Psalm 65 is a passage that can help.

Firstly, Psalm 65 emphasizes God's worthiness. Verse 1 begins this way, "Praise is due to you, O God." Expressing thanks to God should not be seen as some blessed bonus or ecclesiastical extracurricular activity. Receiving praise is His expectation. Notice that we read of God's worthiness before any of His deeds are discussed. Even if God didn't abundantly bless us (which He has), He'd be due praise simply because He is God.

Secondly, we are reminded that our salvation provides a firm foundation for thanksgiving. Verse 5 tells us that the Lord is, the "God of our salvation." A true understanding of grace should make gratitude automatic. God authored our salvation, we did not (Hebrews 12:2). We did nothing to earn forgiveness, adoption, and redemption. These gifts were lavished upon us through the overflow of God's lovingkindness through Christ. Our passion to praise God should start with our salvation. This reality establishes in our minds the truth we find in James 1:17. Every good gift is from God.

Thirdly, it reveals God's heart to bless us. Lean into the picture that is painted by verse 12. Imagine you're walking through an isolated forest and stumble upon a beautiful field of lush green grass swaying in the breeze. God has seen fit to grow "the pastures of the wilderness" in brilliant beauty, a picturesque scene that could go unnoticed by people. If God grows a gorgeous field in the middle of nowhere, how much more is He interested in expressing His power through the blessings He provides us?

This Thanksgiving don't forget the gift-giver. Before you dig into the turkey dinner with all the trimmings, you could read Psalm 65 and ask each person at the table what they are thankful for. Take some time to express praise to a worthy God out of the overflow of a full heart, then focus on filling your stomach. Happy Thanksgiving!

Pastor Andrew

Have you started your Christmas movies marathon yet? We watch them all...the good ones like Miracle on 34th St., Home Alone, Elf and the bad ones (or cheesy ones) on Hallmark, Netflix, etc. The anticipation for Christmas can be great, but the downside is that it can overshadow Thanksgiving and rush us to the BIG holiday. While Christmas is just around the corner, let's take a moment to reflect on what we (Cinco Students) have been focusing on the last couple of months.

1. Prayer - making this a priority in life outside the walls of the church. Learning to sit in silence and solitude to learn the voice of God.

2. Scripture - making God's Word a lamp unto our feet. We can hear God speak EVERY time we open our bibles.

3. Worship - allowing our hearts to be hungry for His presence by being authentic in our expression of worship. Learning that worship is more than music, but everything we do in life is worship. Let that be worship unto Jesus and no one else.

4. Preaching - we are ALL called to preach the Gospel. It may seem pretty foolish to preach at school or work, but for some reason....God tells us to preach. This is more than just communicating with others. This means proclaiming the death and resurrection of Jesus among our peers and family.

Discipleship is personal, not a program. We love partnering with our families as we all grow closer together and closer to Jesus.

Cinco Students and leaders are committed to Gather, Grow, and Go. Being together with purpose and fun, growing in our faith and relationships, and going to proclaim the gospel. We are praying for revival in our faith, for our church, and throughout our city.

So, while watching Muppet Christmas Carol, It's A Wonderful Life, and the cheesy one where the successful business woman visits her hometown and falls for her long-time friend, who opened a Christmas store/orphanage/bakery; let's reflect on why we love this time of year. Share stories with your kids about what God is speaking to you and how you learned to hear His voice. The Holiday season comes and goes, but our passion for Jesus can be here to stay. I am thankful that He is with us, even to the end of the age.
