OUR HOME IS Heaven AND OUR GOAL IS GLORY

Many of the passages that I've preached on over the past few Sundays have called us to focus on eternity and prioritize our heavenly home. The passionate pursuit of what will last forever impacts our relationships and the things we spend our time doing. There will be some other consequences for living this way. Let's look at some other biblical passages that reveal the nature of these "consequences" and how we can overcome them.

Jesus said that we will face persecution (John 15:20). 1 Peter 2:11 can help us to understand why. Inspired by the Holy Spirit, the Apostle Peter describes believers as "sojourners" and "exiles." A sojourner is someone who temporarily dwells in a place that isn't their native nor permanent home. As exiles and sojourners, Christians should understand themselves to be resident foreigners in this world. As far as this planet goes, Christ-followers are just passing through. Our home is Heaven, and our goal is glory. If we live our lives as people who are "not of the world" (John 17:14), those who are of this world will not understand us. People often fear what they do not understand, and what they fear, they often attack.

How do we endure trials and persecution? We get an idea from Paul's instructions to Timothy. Paul encouraged Timothy to be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus (2 Tim. 2:1). One of the ways that Paul, Timothy, you, and I live as faithful sojourners in this world, is that we enjoy a different source of strength. We can rest and remain steadfast through the grace that we have received in Christ Jesus. The undeserved favor of God should serve as a constant reminder that God is for us and in the present tense will remain faithful no matter the circumstance.

In the example of Paul and Timothy, we also see that they had a different source of satisfaction. The passion these men had for Christ and His church permeates much of Paul's letters in the New Testament. In 2 Timothy 3:10-17, Paul encouraged Timothy to define his life by something more significant than the passing pleasures and priorities of this world. Enjoying the gifts of common grace like good food with friends or a fun day at the beach is not wrong and should actually serve as moments of rejuvenation and fellowship. Unfortunately, these passing pleasures are often made priorities at the sacrifice of things that will last for eternity. Perhaps Paul and Timothy's example could serve as a reminder for us to find our satisfaction in the aspects of this life that impact the next one.

CSM STUDENT MINISTRY

ROOTED IN CHRIST. GROWING TOGETHER.

Youth Pastors Need Parents

Youth ministry works best when the church and the home are not working separately, but together.

As a youth pastor, I get a few hours with students each week. Parents get the everyday moments—the car rides, meals, difficult conversations, celebrations, disappointments, and countless ordinary opportunities to shape faith. Scripture makes it clear that parents have a unique role in the spiritual formation of their children.

Deuteronomy 6:6-7 tells parents to teach God's truth throughout the normal rhythms of life: "when you sit in your house and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up." Faith was never meant to be something students only encounter at church.

At the same time, parents were never meant to disciple their children alone.

God has given the church pastors, teachers, leaders, and other believers to help His people grow. Ephesians 4:11-12 says church leaders are called to "equip the saints for the work of ministry." That means healthy youth ministry is not about replacing parents—it is about partnering with them.

Youth pastors need parents who will ask questions after Wednesday night, pray for what God is doing in their teenager's life, reinforce biblical truth at home, encourage involvement, and communicate when a student is struggling. Parents need youth pastors who will teach Scripture faithfully, create safe places for students to belong, provide godly mentors, and support families through the complicated teenage years.

Neither side can do everything. Together, however, we can provide students with something powerful: the same message of faith being lived out at church and at home.

Our teenagers do not need perfect parents or perfect youth pastors. They need adults who consistently point them toward Jesus.

When parents and the church work together, students see that following Christ is bigger than a Wednesday-night program. It becomes part of everyday life—and that is exactly where biblical discipleship was always meant to happen.
