Around & About - AUGUST 2025

Come, Seek the Living Water

Last month, I had the joy of attending our denomination's biennial gathering. Every two years we are offered this sacred time to connect and reconnect with friends, colleagues, and fellow believers from across the country and the globe. It was a powerful reminder that we are part of something much bigger than ourselves. Together, we worshipped, prayed, learned, and celebrated the ways our denomination and our Global Servants (missionaries) are working for healing, justice, and transformation both locally and globally.

This year's theme, "Come, Seek the Living Water," was both timely and timeless. In a world that is deeply thirsty--thirsty for peace, meaning, belonging, and justice, we are invited to draw from a source that never runs dry. The story of the Samaritan woman at the well reminds us that Jesus offers us living water, something no earthly well can provide. After encountering Christ, she didn't just keep that gift for herself, she bore fruit and became a witness to her community.

At our church, we are carrying this message forward through our current sermon series on The Fruit of the Spirit. We're exploring how love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control can take root in our lives and bear fruit in a thirsty world. These fruits aren't just personal virtues, they are seeds of justice, compassion, and community transformation.

I invite you to seek the living water with me to root ourselves deeply in Christ and stay connected to one another. When our roots intertwine, we create a strong, resilient community, able to support each other and stand together in the pursuit of justice.

Let us keep growing, praying, and laboring for the world God dreams of. The well is deep, and the water is abundant. Come, be filled, and go bear fruit.

FAITH LEADERSHIP IN THE CONTEXT OF CLIMATE CHANGE A CONTINUING EDUCATION COURSE FOR FAITH LEADERS

Series Overview:

As we are increasingly experiencing the impacts of climate change and becoming aware of the threat it carries for human and planetary wellbeing, this new context for ministry brings new challenges for faith leaders and ministers. Once its urgency is understood, it results in new priorities and actions. It raises significant theological and ethical questions. It calls for leadership and preaching that help congregations rise to their calling to care for creation. It involves new forms of pastoral care for those experiencing climate anxiety and grief. It also requires new forms of ministry and missional engagement that are relevant to the needs of this unique time in history. It involves recognizing that faith leaders and congregations can be important in helping to build the spiritual and public will needed to enact the impactful solutions for climate change that are available. And it invites us to a deeper spirituality that is equal to the challenges of this day.

Spotlight on Jim Dingwerth

I'm Jim Dingwerth, born in 1949 and a lifelong member of First Baptist Church of Kansas City, Missouri.

Movies have long reflected the world around me. My all-time favorite is Ben-Hur, but I've also loved City Lights, It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World, Dr. Strangelove, Dances with Wolves, High Noon, Outlaw Josey Wales, Driving Miss Daisy, The Godfather, The Graduate, and It's a Wonderful Life. Chaplin's City Lights—a touching mix of comedy and romance still moves me with its "happy sadness." I once invited FBC members to see it for free at the Dickinson Theatre, but no one came. The Graduate even influenced my college choice; after two years at Ottawa University, I transferred to the University of Texas at Austin, 40 times bigger and 20% cheaper, even without aid.

I attended Southwest High School, where, regrettably, racial boundaries limited diversity. Before that, I went to Bingham Junior High (now an empty lot) and Marlborough Elementary (now neglected). One factor in the district's decline was that aging Baby Boomer parents stayed put, while school-age populations moved elsewhere—leaving efforts at fairness lagging behind changing demographics.

After earning a master's in political science from the University of Missouri-Columbia, I briefly made pizzas at Shakey's on Troost for $1.50/hour. I left the dough behind for Model Cities, then worked as a probation officer. When a few colleagues lit up marijuana at a gathering, I walked out, thinking, "I belong in a robe, not a cloud of smoke."

Earlier jobs included concessions at the zoo, where I inflated balloons especially those double ones with a mouse inside. My first boss lost his contract after a city audit exposed underreported sales commissions. When the city took over, prices and wages jumped 50%.

After law school at UMKC, I joined the IRS as an Estate Tax Attorney, where I worked 31 years until retiring in 2010. I loved auditing estate and fiduciary returns. Twice, I discovered $300,000 taxpayer refunds, mistakes overlooked by banks, law firms, and even family members. Contrary to popular belief, the IRS doesn't look for tax increases, only accurate ones. One motto I once proposed (ignored, of course): "At the Internal Revenue Service, our middle name is service."

I love to travel and may leave more unused reward points than anyone in the cemetery. At the 1964 Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, our council chartered a train that stopped in Buffalo, Niagara Falls, NYC (where room service had never heard of Dr. Pepper), and Washington, D.C. Later adventures included Normandy, Egypt, Jerusalem, Switzerland's 1968 Baptist World Youth Conference, Utah's parks, Tahiti, Alaska, and a solo train trip from Austin to Monterrey, Mexico. The best single day? Gettysburg, where I saw deer at Little Round Top and reflected on sacrifice, misjudgment, and courage.

If I had a whole day free? I'd play duplicate bridge while slowly sipping Diet Coke. Barbecue's nice too, though messy with cards. I first discovered bridge in a Look magazine article in a dentist's office. Oswald Jacoby codebreaker and bridge legend caught my imagination. I once played against him and his son at KC's first National bridge tournament. I've also played a hand or two against Bill Gates and Warren Buffett. Where else can a regular person compete with giants?

As for food, Kansas City barbecue ranks high especially Arthur Bryant's "Rich and Spicy" sauce, developed posthumously to replace the original orange variety. At home, I enjoy Belfonte Black Walnut and Breyers Vanilla Bean ice creams. My favorites at potlucks? Deviled eggs (but not Hy-Vee's) and chocolate-covered strawberries—they always vanish first.

Musically, I gravitate toward jazz and easy listening. Henry Mancini, Pat Metheny, and old favorites like Tenderly, Sinatra's It Was a Very Good Year, and Diana Ross's Touch Me in the Morning. Simon & Garfunkel were the soundtrack of my youth.

Church life has always mattered to me. I drove the church van until there was no one left to drive. I was baptized at the Linwood church, in front of that beautiful stained-glass pastoral scene. Back then, the membership was several hundred and today just a few dozens. I'm grateful for new members but grieved that so many have turned away from God—or at least public expressions of faith. I remember when Builders and Wilson classes resisted merging; now both are gone. I feel a bit like the brother of the prodigal son—but without resentment.

Hearing loss makes conversation harder, but I haven't missed Sunday worship, thanks to the video streaming ministry. I've survived prostate cancer and had a mitral valve replaced. I need hearing aids and cataract surgery, but as Pa Kettle said, "One of these days I've got to see about fixing that." I treasure the words of Granny from The Beverly Hillbillies: "I may be over the hill, but I'm through the hollow and only halfway up the next rise."

I have never married, have no children or siblings, but I've lived fully and gratefully. My father wasn't allowed to attend high school—his dad needed help on the farm. My mother graduated from Kansas City Teachers College. Several of my teachers were also FBC members—Miss Garrett, Miss Bury, and Miss Coffey. I hope I've been a worthy memory. I'm thankful to everyone who nurtured me.

FBC Music -- Eyvonne Walker

Greetings in the Lord to all! Well, here we are, the Savior has carried us through to the tail-end of the Summer Season. Our Beloved Community Music Ministry has been rather active throughout our hiatus both in our house of God and in the outer world beyond our four walls.

 David Page was "at it again", making music in the heat with his Way Too Famous Classic Pop-Rock Cover Band at a recent, annual outdoor concert at the Harley-Davidson Dealership.

 Sandi Leonard & Laura Martinez blessed our Congregation immensely, just this past Sunday, July 27, '25 with the resounding resonance of Sandi's Handbell Duet arrangement of "Hymn of Promise" by Natalie Sleeth. You can catch their presentation online in our "Worship Services" link, press the play button on the screen or click the date of July 27, 2025.

 On Saturday, Aug. 16th @ 6pm four of our Handbell Celestial Ringers: Adesjola Tucker, Sandi Leonard, Samuel Okwo and myself will be IN CONCERT @St. Paul's Episcopal Church: 416 SE Grand Ave., Lee's Summit, MO 64063. Tickets are $10.<sup>00</sup>, or a tax deductible donation of any amount. General admission seating can also be paid at the door, which is open at 5:30 for concert attendance.

 Adesjola Tucker has blessed us earlier this summer with her lyrical voice singing, Edwin Hawkins "This Day". She'll be bringing the Special Music selection of "Still I Rise", made famous by Whitney Houston on Aug. 17th come and have your heart filled and blessed!

 Chancel Singers will be "back in the saddle" for our first rehearsal on Wed., Aug. 20th at 7:30 we are hoping to add to our numbers with "outside singers" from the surrounding musician community - - but, if you've been waiting for "the right time" to come to join us from our church family, please count this as our cordial invitation to "COME ON DOWN" and join us in our Music Ministry. If you can't make it - - please, feel free to invite others whom you know of, that would enjoy bringing music to our Beloved Community.

 Celestial Ringers will start rehearsals on Wed., Sept. 3rd, @6:30pm in the FBC Sanctuary.
