The Pastor's Corner

This week we will conclude In the Dust of the Rabbi sermon series with Jesus' most challenging command: "take up your cross daily." Last Sunday was tough as we considered how to be selfless in a very self-centered world, but this week we will grapple with what it means to die to self daily. My hope is found in the sequence Jesus used in discipling; notice He did not lead with "take up your cross daily." He started with simply "come and see." As we will discuss Sunday, our salvation is a process. Jesus takes us right where we are when He finds us, but He does not leave us that way! I hope you will be here Sunday as we scoot up a little closer to our Rabbi Jesus.
