Church family,

It has been a little over a month since my family and I moved to Trinity. Boxes have slowly been unpacked and put away. Some will probably remain packed from our previous home for a while in random places. Point being, settling into a new home can take time and be tedious work trying to figure out where to put things and how to decorate.

A large portion of our current furniture and household items were ordered and delivered to us. With that comes having to assemble said furniture. Anyone who knows me knows I very much dislike assembling furniture. The instructions are near impossible to follow, the photos are poorly printed, and the hardware is extremely tiny. But one thing reigns true every time I assemble an item: it matters where I start in the instructions. If I start in the wrong place or skip a step, the finished product will not function properly or look the way it is supposed to.

I think the same truth applies in our walk with Christ. When it comes to decision making and life choices: it matters where we start. Proverbs 9:10 says, "The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom, and the knowledge of the Holy One is insight." If we desire to make wise decisions in our personal life or in the church, we must begin with a biblical fear of the Lord and be cultivating depth in our relationship with Him. In other words, we should be dependent on the Holy Spirit and God's Word to provide wisdom in our decision making.

We can often be tempted to rely on our own wisdom and ability to make decisions. We may think because of our expertise in a certain area, or our ability to problem solve, or being able to react quickly, that we know what is best. But when we rely only on our finite wisdom and strength, things tend to end poorly for us. At this point, we finally decide to go to God for wisdom. This is the exact opposite of the steps we should take.

We must always start with dependency on the Lord and seek knowledge in His Word before doing anything. This looks like consistent prayer and a hunger for His Word. If we seek wisdom from anywhere outside of the Lord, we will always miss the mark. May we all be reminded that God knows best and is faithful to provide wisdom to His children.

Because He lives,
Pastor Bradley
