Ann Rose, retired English and Humanities professor at Miami Dade College, received her bachelor's degree from Duke University and her master's degree from Emory University. A member of St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Coral Gables, Florida, Ann has given presentations and led retreats locally and in other areas of Florida and North Carolina. She frequently combines her interest in the art and writings of earlier Christian traditions with our present-day longing and search for spiritual depth. Her own faith journey started at Riverside Presbyterian Church in the late '50s. In retreats, she hopes to help participants explore deeper dimensions of their faith, closer intimacy with God, and more gratitude and empathy for their fellow travelers.
