

The Great Backyard Hunt

Take this scavenger hunt outside and explore your surroundings in a fun, new way! You can use it just for yourself and see how many items you can find, or turn it into a friendly game by playing bingo with siblings, parents, or friends. Mark off each square as you spot it, and see who can get bingo first or complete the most squares. The goal is simple: get outside, pay attention to the little details in nature, and enjoy the adventure right where you are.

Something smaller than your thumb	Find a "treasure" you would keep	Find something that feels soft	Find a place where sunlight shines through	Something that makes you thankful
Something that looks like a letter of the alphabet	A hiding spot for a small animal	A flower	Something green that isn't grass	Something that blends into its surroundings (camouflaged)
A smooth rock	A leaf bigger than your hand		Find something that provides shade.	Find an animal's home (bird nest, spider web, anthill, squirrel nest, etc.)
Find something in nature that is your favorite color	Find a heart shape in nature	Find something that sparkles in the sunlight	Something with an interesting shadow pattern	A plant or tree with more than one color on it
A tiny detail you would miss if you weren't looking closely	Something that looks perfectly still	A place where water has changed the ground (mud, erosion, puddle marks)	Something that looks like it has layers	Something that looks strong or unbreakable
