

Dear Bethel CRC,

At Calvin Theological Seminary, there are many entrances. We often joke about never needing to use the same door twice! We also use this multi-entrance situation as a metaphor for the many different ways that people end up attending seminary. There are students straight out of their college years, and students who are taking on a degree as a second career change. Some have been serving churches for years and are in search of a better understanding of biblical theology so that they are more equipped when teaching others. Some students are at Calvin seminary to augment their vocation in the public sphere with sound biblical values.

I am excited to start a second year serving as Missionary in Residence at Calvin seminary, adding a flavor of global mission and cross-cultural ministry conversation to people's experience. With gratitude, I have the privilege to learn with and encourage our future leaders of Kingdom ministry.

Thank you for your support,

Melissa Bos

Resonate Global Mission

When I took hikes in the rugged mountains of Oman, I often came across abandoned villages, some with doors still hanging on the mud walls of the homes.
